Once Headed World's Biggest Movie Chain, 800 Theatres

Sam Katz, motion-picture production executive and former theatre owner, died in his office in Beverly Hills, Cal. His age was 69. One of the film colony's elder statesmen, Mr. Katz had been in show business for fifty-five years.

As a boy of 12 in Chicago, he got a job helping to repair telephone switchboards. Meanwhile, he used to drop in at the nickel movie house Carl Laemmle ran on Twelfth Street, says the New York Times. He had learned a little about the piano, and found it easier to play it at the five cent picture palace from 7 to 10.30 o'clock than twist telephone wires all night.

After a while, he had saved enough to open a film theatre of his own in an abandoned grocery store equipped with camp stools. With the profits from that venture, Mr. Katz financed his way through North-western University. He wanted to be a lawyer, but his studies at the old John Marshall Law School were interrupted when it was closed as a fire hazard.

Mr. Katz grew up with the movies, although for a long time he refused to believe that the infant industry would last. Finally he met Barney Balaban, whose early career had been similar to his. They joined forces and soon were running a chain of theatres.

The partners began to interest bankers in their venture and began building bigger and bigger film theatres. They erected the 2,500-seat Central Park Theatre in Chicago, devoted exclusively to movies. Their chain spread from Chicago into other parts of Illinois and beyond.

In 1925, when Adolph Zukor formed the Publix Theatres Corporation, he made Mr. Katz its president. The chain grew to be the largest in the world, with 800 theatres, and Mr. Katz' salary was quoted in six figures. He ended his association with Mr. Zukor in 1932.

Later Mr. Katz was an executive of a series of corporations that controlled large segments of the film industry. These included the Paramount-Publix Corporation and the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

After the Paramount Theatre in New York was built, complaints were heard from patrons that they sometimes had to stand in the rain while waiting on line at the box office. Mr. Katz had a special marquee built, running round the corner from the Broadway entrance and along Forty-third Street, to protect standees from the elements.

From 1936 to 1949 Mr. Katz was a production executive for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, says the New York Times. More recently he was in partnership with Stanley Kramer and George Glass in the production of films for Columbia Pictures.

He leaves his wife, Belle; a son, William, of New York, and two sisters.

Jews Urged To Translate Jewish Values Into Daily Life

Preservation of Jewish values and traditions are vital for the constructive survival of Jewish life in America, 100 members of the American Jewish Congress were told at a conference in New York at the Stephen Wise Congress House, 15 East Eighty-fourth Street, says the New York Times.

"Only by rooting ourselves deeply in our Jewish heritage will we be able to make a universal contribution to our country and to all mankind," Dr. Joachim Prinz, president of the Congress, told the members present.

He said that the freedom enjoyed by Jews in America was unparalleled in Jewish history and that it created the unique question of whether "to be or not to be Jews." Dr. Prinz said that in choosing to be Jews, members of Jewish communities must be concerned with the creative continuity of the Jewish people and transmit values of the past to future generations.

Rabbi Charles Shulman, of Riverdale Temple, the Bronx, told the gathering that the average individual brings little to his synagogue and community other than material means. He said that too often the individual Jew has little desire to use learnings from the synagogue to enhance his personal and communal life. In consequence, he said, Jewish institutions develop aimless patterns.

"If Jewish values are to be implemented in modern Jewish life there will have to be a re-evaluation of the institutions which call for the support of their associates today," he declared. "And there will have to be considerably more attention paid to the individual Jew and his needs."

Mrs. Jacob Richman, of Philadelphia, president of the national women's division of the Congress, warned that the concept of Jewish home life was changing in a dangerous way, says the New York Times. She urged that it be elevated once again to the pivotal point from which Jewish values were translated into every-day existence.

C. Bezalel Sherman, author and sociologist, called for "making Jewish values live and be lived by, not only in our personal and professional lives, but also in meeting our responsibilities to ourselves as a community; to the State of Israel as the national homeland of the Jewish people; to America as our individual home and to mankind generally."

O.R.T. To Spend Over $2 Million On 675 Trade Schools

U.S. Senator Jacob K. Javits warned that the Communist bloc was seeking to take advantage of the change-over to a new Administration "to unbalance the military situation in the Middle East."

The New York Republican charged that large supplies of arms were being shipped to Arab states "hostile to Israel and the West." He called upon the Kennedy Administration for a re-evaluation of policy in the Middle East.

The Senator spoke at the American O. R. T. Federation national convention at the Commodore Hotel, in New York. O. R. T. (Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training) is devoted to the vocational training and economic reconstruction of Jews throughout the world, says the New York Times. Sharing the same platform, former Senator Herbert H. Lehman said he could not accept as final "the verdict of the doom-mongers" on the outcome of the race between "forces of destruction and the forces of creation."

"For even, as we have been living under the awesome shadow of the bomb, great transformations have been taking place before our eyes. Whole continents have reached up for a place in the sun," Mr. Lehman described as the "great cry" stemming from new countries "to share in the good things of life, to raise the pall of poverty and ignorance," adding that the immediate need everywhere in these areas is education and skills.

Dr. William Haber, Professor of Economics at the University of Michigan, who was elected president, said his organization would support economic rehabilitation and occupational training for more than 40,000 Jews overseas this year. He said that the main areas for O. R. T. vocational training would be in Israel, Poland, North Africa, Western Europe, and Iran.

The delegates approved allocations totalling $2,707,000 for this year toward O. R. T. activities in 675 trade schools in nineteen countries. Dr. Haber noted that $56,-652,000 had been spent by his organization since the end of World War II to assist the economic rehabilitation of about 350,000 persons, says the New York Times. He announced that O. R. T. would establish a vocational school for Jews in Bombay.

In a message to the convention, President Kennedy hailed the organization's program. "Your vocational training schools," he said, "have brought hope to the homeless and to the underprivileged, to the refugees and to the displaced."

U.S. Economist Asks Long Range Plans For Israel Needs

An American economist and consultant of the Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc., has reported that urgent needs have grown in Israel because of recent heavy immigration. Dr. Isador Lubin, who recently returned from Israel after a survey of immigrant rehabilitation programs for the Jewish Agency, outlined these needs in a report.

Among them, he said, was the providing of permanent homes for more than 40,000 immigrants who are living in temporary transition settelements (ma'abaroth), "some for as long as eight years," reports the New York Times. Dr. Lubin also cited 485 immigrant villages with some 32,000 farm units, or 130,000 people whose inhabitants "are not yet economically self-sufficient because they have not yet received the necessary equipment and livestock."

The Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc., the major beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal campaign, is charged with determining allocations of U. J. A. funds for rehabilitation and resettlement programs in Israel. It is an American corporation that has designated the Jewish Agency in Jerusalem as its agent.

In his report, Dr. Lubin cited the need of providing scholarships for gifted immigrant youngsters, "of whom 1,000 are turned down each year because of lack of funds." Israel has no tuition-free high schools.

Dr. Lubin, who is Arthur T. Vanderbilt Professor of Public Affairs at Rutgers University, lauded the "high quality" of the Agency's work in Israel, and termed its absorption and farm development programs "effectively administered and a job being well done."

Indicating that retrenchments of activities in Israel would be necessary without increased U. J. A. funds, he called for long-range planning. He emphasized that the philanthropic needs of Israel's people "cannot be over-stated," adding that "even after making allowances for the large amounts that come in from abroad, there are yet too many people requiring assistance."

He said that "the problem is to establish priorities in the use of such income from the United States and other countries," says the New York Times. This would involve, he said, planning the activities of the Jewish Agency for the next ten years.

World Zionist Head Foresees Severe Demands On Israel And Dangers To World Jewry

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, expressed concern in Jerusalem that a settlement of differences between the Soviet Union and the new Administration in the United States might work to Israel's disadvantage.

He saw the possibility of a demand that Israel make considerable territorial concessions to the Arab states and accept the "massive return" of Arab refugees, says the New York Times. Dr. Goldmann said that even worse things would happen if attempts at improving United States-Soviet relations should fail.

"In view of the unfriendly attitude of the Soviet bloc with regard to Israel, this may affect dangerously the situation in the Middle East," he said. Dr. Goldmann's remarks, made in an interview with the New York Times, in Jerusalem, were by way of explanation of his speech at the opening session of the twenty-fifth Zionist Congress there.

In the speech he declared that because of its announced intention of showing fresh initiatives in obtaining a solution to world problems, including the problem of the Middle East, the Administration of President-elect John F. Kennedy might upset the relative stability prevailing in the area.

"I have full confidence in the friendly attitude and the genuine interest in Israel on behalf of the new Administration," Dr. Goldmann said, "both based on the many statements of the President-elect with regard to Israel and on my personal acquaintanceship with both Mr. Dean Rusk, the new Secretary of State, and Mr. Chester Bowles."

Stressing that his fears were based on the influence the Soviet bloc might have in any attempt to settle the Middle East situation in view of its "known position," he said:

"The demands which the Soviet bloc, in backing the Arabs, may support could involve either territorial concessions like return to the original partition lines or the massive return of the Arab refugees into Israel."

He said both such demands would be unacceptable to Israel, but he added that he was convinced Israel might consider, "within the framework of a general settlement a measure of positive contribution to the solution of the Arab refugee problem."

Dr. Goldmann declined to say how he thought Israel might contribute to such a solution, says the New York Times. He is known to subscribe to the body of moderate opinion that sees no harm in admitting at least some of the Arabs within the terms of a general settlement with the Arab states.

In his speech he forecast that the Middle East along with other world trouble spots, would be stimulated by initiatives from the United States and that new risks and dangers would result.

Such initiatives, he declared, could lead either to intensification of the "cold war," with obvious danger to Israel, or to an increased measure of coexistence. The latter could be equally dangerous, he said, if it produced pressure on Israel from both sides to make concessions to the Arab states to gain peace.

"In the light of such possibilities, both Israel and the Jewish people will have to be more alert than may have been necessary in

Mr. and Mrs. A. Aronovitch, 6237 DeVimy Avenue, entertained forty guests at an evening at their home in honour of the engagement of their daughtor, Miss Elayne Aronovitch, to Michael Neuman, son of George Neuman, 4785 St. Kevin Avenue, and the late Mrs. Molly Neuman. Miss Aronovitch wore a blue shantung cocktail dress, having a round neckline, short sleeves, and full skirt; and a wristlet of blue carnations. A floral centerpiece decorated the table. The marriage will take place on June 20, at Young Israel Synagogue.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Rosen, 4000 St. Catherine Road, were entertained at a dinner party at Ruby Foo's, in celebration of their fortieth wedding anniversary given by their children. They have two sons and daughters-in-law: Dr. and Mrs. Harold Rosen, of Saint John, N. B.; Dr. and Mrs. David A. Rosen, of Kingston, Ont.; two sons-in-law and daughters: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Zlatkin (Gertrude), 5715 Whitehorne Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. P. Adesky (Rose), 4455 Dupuis Avenue; and nine grandchildren; Leonard, Barbara, and Mark, children of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Rosen; Allan, and Michael, sons of Dr. and Mrs. David A. Rosen; Linda and Michael Zlatkin; and Neil and Richard Adesky. The table was trimmed with an arrangement of pink and white carnations.

Mrs. Harry Cohen, 780 De L'Epee Avenue, entertained at a tea at Miss Montreal, in honour of Miss Judy Barg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Barg, 3030 Linton Avenue, and the fiancee of her son, Edward Cohen. Mrs. Barg, mother of the bride-elect, was in a green and white silk sheath; and had a corsage of pink carnations. Miss Judy Barg, wore a champagne-coloured, brocaded sheath, which was made with a round neckline; and short sleeves; with a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Cohen was unable to be present. Seated at the head table with Mrs. Barg and her daughter were: Mesdames Rachel Wener, grandmother of the groom-elect; O. Platt, sister of the bride-elect; H. Wener, Hyman Wener, and W. Gorn. The table decoration was a centerpiece of white and pink carnations. Miss Judy Barg was presented with a bone china dinner set by the guests. Mrs. E. Kavanat and Miss Beverly Kavanat, of Ottawa, Ont., were here for the party.

Mr. and Mrs. David Zeitchyk, 2740 Goyer Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Sheldon, who was called to the Reading of the Law, at Beth David-Beth Yitzchok-Kehal Joshurun Synagogue. He is the brother of Miss Ruth Eunice Zeitchyk; grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Goffman; and of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Zeitchyk. Following services, Mr. and Mrs. Zeitchyk were hosts at a Kiddush luncheon in the Synagogue hall. Mrs. Zeitchyk was in a beige, peau de soie sheath, made with a round neckline; and short sleeves; with a beige tulle hat; and had a beige-tinted gardenia pinned to her purse. Miss Zeitchyk, wore a turquoise-blue, brocaded sheath, with a mandarin neckline; and long sleeves; and had a wristlet of orange-coloured baby roses. Seated at the head table with the family were: Rabbi I. J. Teicher, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gitnick, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gallay, Mrs. Zena Landau, A. Zeitchyk, Harold Miller, and R. Gallay, who was master of ceremonies. The bar-mitzvah boy spoke. Rabbi I. J. Teicher asked a blessing over the challah. The table decoration consisted of a blue and white bar-mitzvah cake, with white and blue carnations, gladioli, and chrysanthemums. Here for the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. I. Rubinek, Mr. and Mrs. J. Castell, Mr. and Mrs. M. Dizgun, Mr. and Mrs. S. Engelberg, and A. Shinder, all of Ottawa, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Arthur Simon, 2080 College Street, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Martin Douglas, who was called to the Reading of the Law, at Beth Ora Synagogue. He is the brother of Miss Beverly Simon; grandson of Mrs. Sarah Doner, and the late Max Doner; and of Mrs. Ann Simon, and the late Max Simon; all of Halifax, N. S. Kiddush was observed. The following evening, Mr. and Mrs. Simon were hosts to one hundred and seventy-five guests at a dinner dance in the Synagogue hall. Mrs. Simon wore an off-white, brocaded gown, made with a low neckline; short sleeves; and a bell-shaped skirt; with a corsage of red carnations. Mrs. Doner, grandmother, wore a blue lace gown with its own jacket; and her corsage was of pink carnations. Mrs. Simon, grandmother, was in a black crepe gown; and had a corsage of red carnations. Miss Beverly Simon was in an emerald-green, peau de soie gown, cut with a wide, portrait neckline; short sleeves; and full skirt; and her flowers were a corsage of white carnations. The bar-mitzvah boy spoke. Seated at the head table with the family were: Rabbi and Mrs. Morris Halpern, Reverend A. Kenner, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pelly, Miss Bertha Herman, and Charles Doner. Rabbi Halpern and Reverend Kenner asked a blessing over the challah. Samuel Pelly, the bar-mitzvah boy's uncle, was master of ceremonies. A blue and white bar-mitzvah cake with centerpieces of white and red carnations adorned the table. Mrs. David Kirsh (Evelyn), sang favorite songs of the bar-mitzvah boy and his grandmothers. Here for the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smolkin, of Smith Falls, Ont.; Mrs. Arnold Haltrecht, of Ottawa, Ont.; Charles Doner, of Chicago, Ill.; and Miss Bertha Herman, of Winnipeg, Man.

APPROACHING MARRIAGES

The marriage of Miss Judy Barg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Barg, 3030 Linton Avenue, to Edward Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen, 780 De L'Epee Avenue, will take place on March 19, at Shomrim Laboker-Beth Yehuda-Shaara Tefilinh Synagogue, Dr. Chaim N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating.

MARRIAGES

CHORLTON-ZINMAN

The marriage of Miss Cecilia R. Zinman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Zinman, 124 Dufferin Road, to Ronald M. Chorlton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Chorlton, 4674 Hingston Avenue, was solemnized at Chevra Kadisha-Bnai Jacob Synagogue, on January 14, at six o'clock, by Rabbi David Roth, assisted by Rabbi Allan Levine, of Bradford, Pa., cousin of the groom; and Cantor J. Rosenzweig. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white peau de soie, cut with a fitted bodice; round neckline; long sleeves; and full skirt ending in a chapel train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a rhinestone tiara; and she carried a prayer book with mauve orchids and white satin streamers. Mrs. Aaron Spector was matron of honour for her sister. She wore a blue brocaded gown, made with a round neckline; and full skirt; also a matching headdress; and carried a cascade of blue and white carnations. Karin Marks, cousin of the groom; and Phyllis Prehogan, cousin of the bride, were junior bridesmaids, dressed alike in mauve organza, made with full skirts. Their bandeaux were of pink and white carnations; and they carried semi-cascades of matching flowers. Malcolm Sobie acted as best man. The ushers were: Isaac Robin, Zave Zinman, brother of the bride; Donald Kudanoff, Aaron Spector, Harvey Levine, and Alan Bramson. White pom-poms and gladioli decorated the Synagogue. Mrs. Zinman, mother of the bride, wore a blue peau de soie sheath, which had a round neckline; short sleeves; sheath skirt with an overskirt of matching material; with a hat of the same shade; and her flowers were a corsage of mauve orchids. Mrs. Chorlton, mother of the groom, was in a brocaded satin gown, made with a round neckline; short sleeves; and an appliqued front panel. Her hat was of organza petals; and she had a corsage of white orchids pinned to her purse. Mr. and Mrs. Ronald M. Chorlton spent their wedding trip at Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., in the Catskill Mountains, the bride travelling in a beige wool suit which had a beaver collar. They have taken up residence at 6955 Coronation Avenue. Here for the marriage were: Rabbi and Mrs. Allan Levine, of Bradford, Pa.; Mrs. Molly Cipes, of New York; Dr. and Mrs. William Breslin, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Slone, and Miss Rae Charlton; all of Toronto, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Kalman Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gould, Miss Rose Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Coplan, Miss Beatrice Slonemsky, and Ronald Gould, all of Ottawa, Ont.

BATSHAW-LISBONA

The marriage of Miss Huguette Lisbona, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lisbona, 3315 Van Horne Avenue, formerly of Alexandria, Egypt, to Lewis David Batshaw, son of the Hon. Mr. Justice Harry Batshaw, and Dr. Anne T. Batshaw, 4336 Montrose Avenue, took place at Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, on January 29, at half-past five o'clock. Rabbi Wilfred Schuchat officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a period gown of white organza, re-embroidered in lace, and fashioned with a fitted bodice; a heart-shaped, draped neckline; and skirt which shaped into a chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of seed-pearl-beads; and she carried a cascade of feathered carnations, orchids, and stephanotis. Mrs. Frederick Wiseman, of Cambridge, Mass., sister of the groom, was matron of honour. She wore a gown of lace set over light green satin. Misses Mirelle Lisbona, sister of the bride, and Nancy Barakey, the bride's other attendants, were in gowns of white organza; with matching hats; and carried red and pink roses. Kalman Samuels was best man. The ushers were: Andre Lisbona, brother of the bride; and Frederick Wiseman, brother-in-law of the groom. Pink and white carnations and gladioli decorated the Synagogue. Mrs. Lisbona, mother of the bride, was in a gown of ice-blue satin, with a flowered hat of that colour; and carried white feathered carnations. Dr. Batshaw, mother of the groom, wore a gown of pink satin; with a hat of pink tulle; and carried white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis David Batshaw spent their wedding trip in Palm Beach, Florida. Here for the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. Julian Ansell, of Boston, Mass.; Joseph Tarshis, of Toronto, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Batshaw, of Milburn, N. J.; Arthur Batshaw, of Plainfield, N. J.; and Charles Frost, of Palm Beach, Florida, and New York.

TOULCH-SEGAL

The marriage of Miss Libby Segal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Segal, 769 Davaar Avenue, to Dr. Harry Toulch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Toulch, 5245 Durocher Avenue, was solemnized at Adath Israel Synagogue, on January 22, at one o'clock, by Rabbi Charles Bender, assisted by Cantor E. Goldberger. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was gowned in white peau de soie, cut with a tight-fitted bodice; with a square neckline; long sleeves; and full bouffant skirt. Her veil of tulle illusion was arranged with a matching small crown, and she carried a white prayer book with white orchids and white satin streamers. Miss Libby Kirstenberg was maid of honour for her cousin. She was in a pink, peau de soie gown, with a matching jacket; and had a small, tulle veil held by a large peau de soie rose. She carried a cascade of pink carnations. Samuel Toulch was best man for his brother. The ushers were: Lawrence Bergman, David Brotman, Gerald Kirstenberg, Daniel Gross, Dr. Arnold Steinman, Norman Toulch, and Eric Segal. Pink carnations and gladioli decorated the Synagogue. Mrs. Segal, mother of the bride, was in a light-bronze-coloured silk sheath which was made with a V-neckline; and cap sleeves. Her tulle hat was rose-coloured; and her flowers were a corsage of pink orchids. Mrs. Toulch, mother of the groom, was in a pink lace and organza gown, which had a square neckline; and full skirt. Her hat was of that material; and her wristlet was of pink orchids. Dr. and Mrs. Harry Toulch spent their wedding trip in Quebec City, the bride travelling in a red knitted suit. Dr. and Mrs. Gerald J. Garand, of Boston, Mass., were here for the marriage.

SOKOLOFF-ALTNER

The marriage of Miss Carol Ruth Altner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Altner, 4950 Powell Avenue, to David Sokoloff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sokoloff, 900 Dunlop Avenue, took place on January 15, at six o'clock, at Beth El Synagogue. Rabbi Allan M. Langner officiated, assisted by Rabbi I. J. Teicher. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was of white peau de soie, fashioned with a fitted bodice; scooped neckline; short sleeves; and a full skirt, appliqued with pink and re-embroidered with seed-pearl-beads, extending into a short train. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was combined with a coronet of seed-pearl-beads; and she carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis. Miss Leona Altner, as maid of honour for her sister, was in a gown of pale blue peau de soie, designed with a fitted bodice of white lace; and a bouffant skirt appliqued with seed-pearl-beads and sequins. She had a matching peau de soie head-bow; and carried blue and white pom-poms. Karin Garmaise and Susan Garmaise, nieces of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaids, were in dresses of pale blue and white eyelet; with matching head-bands; and nosegays of blue and white pom-poms. Sydney Sokoloff was best man for his brother. The ushers were: Tommy Sokoloff, brother of the groom; Mark Garmaise, nephew of the groom; Peter Schreter, Murray Brettschneider, David Solomon, and Michael Elman. Blue and white carnations and pom-poms were the wedding flowers. Mrs. Altner, the bride's mother, was in a gown of blue lace, with a satin panel; and had a matching hat. Mrs. Sokoloff, mother of the groom, was in a long gown of blue peau de soie, embroidered with seed-pearl-beads and sequins; and a veiled petal hat of that colour. Each carried white orchids pinned to their purses. Mr. and Mrs. David Sokoloff spent their wedding trip at the Nevele Country Club, in Ellanville, N.Y., the bride travelling in an ensemble of brown and beige wool, and a beaver coat; with an orchid corsage.

VALENT-COHEN

The marriage of Miss Florence Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Cohen, 6575 Victoria Avenue, to Rudolph Valent, son of A. Valent, of New York, and the late Mrs. A. Valent, took place in New York, on December 25, at one o'clock. Rabbi A. Rifkin officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown of white brocaded satin, made with a fitted bodice; portrait neckline; three-quarter-length sleeves; and sheath skirt. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was attached to a lace tiara; and she carried a white prayer book with white orchids and white satin streamers. Mrs. Cohen, mother of the bride, was in a beige silk gown; with a hat of that colour; and had a corsage of yellow carnations. Mrs. Harry Winagar, aunt of the groom, wore a beige silk gown; with hat to match; and her flowers were a corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Valent have taken up residence in New York. There for the marriage were his parents; and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Winagar, 2377 Bedford Road, uncle and aunt of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Staviss, and Howard Warren, 2435 Lafortune Street; and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Halpern, 6575 Victoria Avenue, brothers-in-law, and sisters of the bride.

It's a toast to your figure when you fill your glass with Controcal, a delicious dairy diet drink!

The Controcal plan controls calorie intake, while supplying adequate nutrition and appetite satisfaction. Controcal's high quality protein, minerals and vitamins help maintain health, while its 900-calorie content causes the body to withdraw needed calories from the 'bank' (fat which has been previously deposited in body tissues). Weight reduction follows . . . with figure-flattering results!

Consult your doctor for advice on the Controcal program best for you. Controcal can be used for the total diet, or as a replacement for all meals a few days per week—depending on how fast you wish to reduce. After you've achieved your most satisfactory weight, you can use the Controcal plan at regular intervals to help you keep it.

Controcal is a dairy drink—pasteurized, homogenized, rich in flavour and in appetite satisfaction. (Controcal's high quality protein content is effective in helping to prevent hunger pangs.) Choose it in vanilla or chocolate flavour.

CLASS IN COOKERY

PURIM POPPY SEED HAMANTASCHEN

one pound poppy seeds
five eggs
two tablespoons shortening
one teaspoon vanilla
four cups flour
one-half cup raisins
two cups milk
one cup sugar
one-quarter cup orange juice
one tablespoon butter
three teaspoons baking powder

For the filling cook the poppy seeds together with two cups of milk and one tablespoon of butter for about twenty minutes. Then add two beaten eggs and one-half cup raisins, mixing together.

For the dough mix together shortening, sugar, three eggs, baking powder, orange juice, and vanilla. Roll out the dough on a wooden board, until it is large enough to make twelve medium-sized triangles. Fill them with the poppy seed mixture. Draw up the three corners, and pinch them together in the centre. Place on greased cookie sheets, and bake at three hundred degrees for one-half hour.

Miss Esther Kimel,
807 Bloomfield Avenue, Montreal.

APPLE PIE CAKE

three cups sifted all-purpose flour three tablespoons baking powder
two eggs
one-quarter cup orange juice
three teaspoons cinnamon
one-half cup jam
one-half teaspoon salt
one cup shortening
one-quarter cup sugar six Spy apples
one cup sugar
one-half cup raisins

Filling

Wash apples, peel, and cut into small pieces. Add the cinnamon, one cup sugar, jam, and raisins.

Dough

Cream sugar, shortening, and eggs. Sift the flour, baking powder, and salt. Add to the shortening mixture. Add the orange juice, and mix. Roll out the dough, and cut into three pieces. Roll out each piece to fit a medium size pyrex baking dish. Place the first layer of the dough in the oiled dish, and cover it with one-half of the filling. Place the second layer of the dough, on the filling and spread remainder of the filling over it. Cover with the remaining dough, and bake for one hour at 350 degrees.

Epitaph For An Unknown

BY MARGARET H. COLLIN

The little woman wiped her hands in her faded, flowered apron, took it off, placed it in the waste basket, and stood by the window. This was going to be the last time she would see the familiar street; the last time that she would shield her eyes against the glare of the September sun reflected in the plate glass window of the store on the opposite side of the street, whose owner had long since stopped selling her, a Jewess, what little food she needed.

Slowly the little woman turned back into the apartment that had been her home for thirty years. In another hour she would leave it, probably never to return. She picked up the letter that had come in the morning mail, telling her to report at such-and-such a place at ten o'clock that afternoon to be sent to an Old-Age Home with a number of oldsters. Was she old? She was sixty-seven; yes, she supposed she was old, then.

There had been a series of transactions concerning the remainder of her money, a few days ago, of which she had understood but little. Nevertheless she had signed her name to it, whatever "it" had been; you simply did what the Gestapo told you to do; there was nothing else to be done, anyway. She folded the letter and reached for her purse to put it in — then stopped short: there would be no need to take a purse. She had no more money save a few marks; she would not need her keys again — what sense was there in taking a purse?

The little woman ran a trembling hand over her dresser as she bent down and took out from its drawers a towel and washcloth, a carefully hoarded piece of soap, several articles of underwear. She carried the pitifully small pile into the living room and looked around for a suitable container. Presently, with a deep sigh, she took from her wardrobe an old brown leather case with shoulder straps.

Tears fell onto her few belongings as she put them, one by one, into her child's battered school satchel; yet a bitter smile curved her lips: With this no one could stop her from taking a keepsake along into the future; something to remind her of the days that she had checked that old satchel to see whether her child had remembered to sharpen her pencils and to fill her fountain pen . . . the shoulder straps even might be coming in handy in case she needed her hands free for anything. Presently she was calm again.

To the few items in the satchel she added an old grey sweater, an apron, a wool scarf, comb, and toothbrush. From the kitchen she gathered what edibles she could find. Dimly she was aware of a longing for an egg, a buttered roll, and a cup of cocoa — but she could not even remember when she had last enjoyed such luxuries.

Her glance rested momentarily on an ancient, tiny alarm clock on a bare kitchen shelf. Almost automatically she wound it, and for a moment hesitated before she added it to the contents of the satchel. Strange, she mused, that she would want a means of keeping time when time had long since become meaningless — for how long had one day been the same terror-laden menace as the one that had gone before and the one that would come after?

She stopped in front of her wardrobe to view herself for the last time: a slender woman, just five feet tall, with large grey eyes, that at sixty-seven, still could distinguish the minutest detail without glasses; sparse brown hair, carefully parted in the centre and plaited into a bun at the nape of her neck. She nodded at her reflection, as if to take leave of herself, then added another hairpin. Slowly, for the last time, she closed the living room windows. She stopped at her desk, toyed with a pencil, dropped it and left it to roll under the desk — there would be no one to write to.

How long was it since she had last heard from her sisters in far-away America? From her child, safe in England? Was her child really safe over there? Daily almost the papers' headlines screamed triumphantly about successful air raids on London . . . With another deep sigh she remembered one more item that she must not leave behind at any cost.

She went into the bedroom and from beneath her pillow pulled her well-worn prayer book and put it in the satchel which she then closed. She zipped her cardigan over her sweater and made sure the yellow star was securely fastened and visible on her jacket. She picked up her coat and a small blanket; she took, in her other hand, the satchel by its straps. With a last look around she let the door slam shut — the little woman was ready.

She knew that she would never return to this place; but now that fear had become reality, now that the dreaded moment had actually come, she was serenely calm. She had to walk about a half-hour to the meeting place. She had thought her heart would break if this moment ever came — but to her utter amazement she found that she could not focus her thoughts. She tried to think back, but she could not seem to remember anything much; not the day they had carried her brother out, or the day they had slain her husband. And how long was it since her child had left?

How long since decency had deteriorated into wilful, lustful murder; since culture had decayed into mediaeval barbarism? Since technical progress had been diverted into means of torture? Try as she might, it eluded her. And when they reached the Home, she could not seem to remember the journey there, either. She had ceased to be afraid, somehow. All the pent-up tension of years seemed to have left her. And the harshness. And the bitterness.

She no longer seemed to recall the endless fights with her brother. Or the unfaithfulness of her husband. At times she even wondered if she could not, perhaps, have been more forgiving in the past, or less strict with her child. Her child — she had written more than once that she had liked living in a Home; maybe it would not be so terrible, after all, to spend the war years in that Home; at least, the little woman mused, they would have some food, and she would not be alone. And after the war . . . .

Very soon the little woman asked for some work to do — the little woman was not used to sitting still. And she worked, tirelessly, day in and day out; she helped in the kitchen, and she helped tending the sick. She learned that Judgment Day was no longer a matter of religious teaching, but a matter of arbitrary selection; a man-made institution that, almost daily, picked at random a number of her companions, herded them into a van headed for a gas chamber in no-man's land, whereupon a sprucely uniformed attendant reported with much heel-clicking and "Heil" shouting that the "transport" had left as commanded.

And a strange thing happened: The little woman who, as long as her child could remember, had always been ailing, never knew a sick day, despite the many epidemics of typhoid and pneumonia, those constant menaces hovering in the wake of cold and hunger, of exhaustion and exposure. Her eyesight remained undiminished; her hair remained brown.

And she who always had abhorred company, now was never found alone: She prayed with the despairing, she sat with the dying; she silenced the whimpers of the brutally maimed and injured; she quietened the raving of those delirious with fever and disease. She talked to those around her who befriended her for her help in need; she talked about the lonely days and nights after her brother had taken his own life and her husband had been slain in the street; she pondered about the cruel fate that had befallen them all and wondered if, perchance, it could be some form of punishment; but then, the little woman reasoned, "it would not be like God at all to punish all of us."

And she resolved with those that flocked around her, to hold on to faith and reason, and to hold out till their last breath. And daily she witnessed how, at the slightest mishap, sometimes with reason and more often without, helpless people were killed, after their guards had enjoyed adventures in bestiality to their hearts' content. No one but God knew the agony she would suffer then. And each morning she would emerge her spry, busy self; working and talking about what she would do after that wretched war was over; how she would rejoin her child who would have been a teacher had not "circumstances" prevented it — and who now worked in London, as a servant.

The little woman often worried about her child whose health had always been so frail — would she be able to withstand the hardships of her life? Sometimes the little woman was heard to hum a melody; she said it was in some way connected with her child, but she could not recall whether her child had written it, or played it; she only knew vaguely that it was from a play of some sort.

She never lost confidence that, after the war was ended, she would be with her child again. She never tired of planning for that day — and she never stopped praying for that day. And the ancient little alarm clock that no one had bothered to confiscate, busily ticked away days, weeks, months, years . . . .

The outside world was as remote as the North Pole. Life was reduced to a mere existence of perpetual struggle, with the barest necessities at a premium, against a background of anguish, of mortal fear that each day, each hour "They" may decide to make it their last one on earth. Yet, despite all cautionary measures, rumours from the outside world drifted in, the way you cannot keep the aroma of a stew cooking on the stove from wafting in from beneath the kitchen door — rumours of the Allies closing in on Germany from all sides.

Sun Life Reports Outstanding Sales; Increase In Assets

Canadians and Americans would do well to remember at all times that interdependence is the key to their relations with one another, George W. Bourke, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, said at the 90th annual meeting of policyholders, in Montreal. Mr. Bourke reported an outstanding year for Sun Life in 1960, with sales of more than one billion dollars of life insurance to a total in force by the company of $9,573 millions. Assets increased $82 million to $2,389 million.

Devoting the major part of his address to Canada's economic prospects, Mr. Bourke recommended the expansion of Canadian secondary industry and had some words of caution to say on Canada-U.S. relations. But he added that the economic outlook was not critical, in spite of the fact that the Canadian mood had temporarily lost its buoyancy and optimism.

The problem between Canada and the United States, he said, is one of interdependence. Canada owes much of its present standard of living to the United States and depends on the U.S. for export markets, capital and technical knowledge. The U.S. depends on Canada for its largest single export market and supply of essential materials.

"There is now an opportunity for Canada to take the initiative in attempting to review all aspects of Canada-U.S. relations . . . especially important at a time when a new administration in Washington is reconsidering American foreign and economic policy. The Canadian government has a clear responsibility to formulate and follow a co-ordinated approach to trade and investment policy — objectives stated clearly and publicly. I commend also an extension of the constructive work of analysis and comment by various committees formed for the purpose of exploring points of friction between the U.S. and Canada."

Over-preoccupation with the problem of Canada's dependence on foreign capital has dangers, Mr. Bourke said. "We must beware lest international investors, discouraged and puzzled by the confusions in Canadian attitudes, should lose interest in Canada. Canada's foreign friends need repeated reassurance by the government that Canada has no intention whatever of retreating into economic isolation."

Mr. Bourke said the greatest challenge to Canada's future growth is the expansion of a profitable secondary manufacturing industry, which will require a highly skilled work force, an expanding and broadly based program of Canadian research and more effective incentives for new and existing industries to develop and market new products protected by Canadian patents and with worldwide marketing rights.

Mr. Bourke called for a firm control over Canadian industrial costs and prices by increasing productivity and by moderating significantly the scale of demands Canadians make on the economy. He said these were essential if the burden of taxation is to be reduced, and spoke of the high level of taxation as "one of the chief obstacles to an early resumption of a satisfactory rate of saving and growth."

Speaking of the Bank of Canada, Mr. Bourke said it is time to re-examine the policymaking processes of the Bank and the adequacy of the tools at its disposal. "It could be useful to enquire into means of implementing a smoother functioning of the capital markets and of improving the lines of communication between the Bank and the business and financial communities, so that Bank policy and the reasons for it may be better appraised and appreciated."

Time, of a sudden, re-assumed meaning; was re-installed in its proper place; its wings, like a huge propeller, began to take up their rhythmical beat. The little woman even stole a glance at a calendar while she was cleaning an office. Surely, if the Allies really were approaching, the war would soon be over. How soon? Maybe in time for her child's birthday? Child? Her daughter would be thirty. No, perhaps that was asking too much. Maybe in time for her own? It was a month away, her seventieth birthday.

The little woman's contemplations were rudely, roughly, noisily interrupted by a guard shouting her name. She gazed up at him, stunned, bewildered — she did not, could not understand. They would not want to send her off — they needed her here — she was useful here . . . Unknown to her, a horror-stricken "Why?" escaped her bloodless lips. But the guard had heard. Slightly bored, perhaps, and obviously eager to get his allotted task done and over with and get back to his card game, he even took time out for a civil answer: "It's your turn; we now proceed alphabetically".

An hour later the van with its freight of despairing humanity rattled toward its destination, to one of the points of no return. The little woman knew this was the end. Incredulous, numbed, her senses took in, for what she knew to be irrevocably the last time, the beauty of spring. From some source unknown she mustered the strength to whisper, through clenched teeth, to her companions: "Don't cry; soon now we shall be liberated, very soon . . ."

They were — the very next day, from their earthly torments, in an Auschwitz gas chamber. There were hundreds like them; thousands, millions, — six millions, to be statistically correct. The day was May 7th, 1945. The next day's sun rose on the allied troops marching through Germany.

The little woman was my mother.

Montreal City And District Savings Bank Reports New Earnings For Year

The 114th annual statement of The Montreal City and District Savings Bank, submitted at the annual meeting of share-holders, showed new records in earnings, total resources and other items.

The president, Guy Vanier, Q.C., covered general economic conditions in Canada and this country's relative situation in relation to the rest of the world. He stressed the need of a realistic approach to our problems, and emphasized that hard work, coupled with thrift, is the foundation of an individual's prosperity.

Mr. Vanier said that taxes should be reduced "in order to foster the necessary resources for new investments," but urged that this expansion in savings "should at the same time be channelled towards enterprises that would lessen unemployment, moderate use and rise of luxuries, reduce the importation of manufactured goods, and increase the command of Canadians over our secondary industries."

The general manager, Antonio Rainville, discussed the highlights of the year's financial statement. Total assets at the year-end amounted to $258 million, an increase of $5 million over the position at the end of 1959.

A high liquid position was maintained with investments and cash representing 75% of deposit liabilities. Deposits by the public rose by more than $10,000,000 to a total of over $242,000,000.

The year's net profits totalled $906,895 in 1960 against $821,173 in 1959. After deducting donations, the earnings were equal to $4.41 per share against $3.97. Dividend declarations were $2.40 a share against $2.10. An amount of $500,000 was transferred to Rest Account, the same as in 1959. The Rest Account now stands at $8,000,000.

Four new branches were opened in 1960, and the bank now has a total of 47 branches in addition to its Head Office. Mr. Rainville said that a policy of further active expansion will be followed, and plans are under way for "many other branches."

Children Can Have A Fine Time In Europe, Too!

BY JUDITH SHEPARD ROSENFELD, IN THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

If you want to travel abroad and all that stands between you and that long-awaited trip are the children — take the trip. But do it right.

My husband and I did it both ways, and perhaps we may be forgiven for disagreeing with Ed Lacy, who returned from his European journey a beaten man. Young Carla Lacy, her father says, got little out of her five months abroad and her suffering parents were forced to see Europe from the playground level.

We had our playground days, too. And our stir-crazy hotel-room days when our spirits fell with the rain and our two-year-old daughter decorated the walls with indelible pencils. Our four-year-old son threw a memorable tantrum smack in front of the shocked mamas of Paris in the Bois. Both children whined, fought, spilled milk and raised cain all over Paris.

Why? Because, as the Lacys say, children do not belong in hotel rooms. Children do not tolerate disruption of routine. Children do not like being shushed, shoved around, isolated from their contemporaries. And, as we all discover sooner or later, there is nothing so menacing as a kid who has it in for the older generation.

Discouraging? Not at all. We recently returned from the best European vacation we've ever had. Our kids are fine, and so are we.

At first we made mistakes, the mistakes the Lacy family made. But we were luckier, for we made up for the first week with seven glorious weeks of mutual holiday. And we intend to do it again and again.

Next time, we shall skip all hotel rooms. Instead, we shall take a cab from the airport directly to a furnished apartment in the city of our choice. Our Mother's Help (a fine European institution, that) will have stocked the flat with provisions for the night and will be on hand to help stoke our bottomless children, keep them busy and help to put them to bed.

There's no secret, really. If you can't lick 'em, join 'em. If your kids don't want to live adult tourist lives, give them back their childhood routines. Feed them frog legs, if that's all that's available, but feed them at home — a home away from home. Give them a toy chest, fill it with whatever you can buy and ship it home under your customs allowance later.

If you don't want to spend your days in the park, hire someone to do it for you. If you want your evenings free, a sleep-in Mother's Help takes care of that aspect, too. And if, after all that, your kids are still lonely for more companionship than the parks can offer, take a deep breath and enter them in nursery school.

That last may sound rather wild to our Spock-bred generation and, if any outsider had dared suggest it to us on our arrival in London, we would probably have fought the idea to the death. Fortunately for us, however, the suggestion came from one of the interested parties. It came from Michael, aged four. "You know what's the matter with me and Dana?" he said. "We're lonely."

A few days later, we delivered both children to a nursery school in a London suburb. Our upper lips were far from stiff, and the English rule prohibiting parents from waiting the initial introductory period seemed insanely cruel to us. We were allowed ten minutes in an ante room, just in case of trouble beyond the management of the teacher. The ten minutes came and went. We went.

We went to the Tate Gallery, where we wrung our hands in front of the Picassos until 11 a.m., when we phoned the nursery school. The children, said a cool English voice, were having a perfectly marvelous time.

They had a marvelous time for the next six weeks, and so did we.

Student Tours To Israel, Offer Summer Institutes In Israel, And A "Bar-Mitzvah" Tour

The departments of Education and Culture, of the American Zionist Council and of the Jewish Agency, in Jerusalem, announced that there will be a "bar-mitzvah" tour of Israel, as an educational project for bar-mitzvah-aged children, from Canada and the United States, to Israel, this summer, on the thirteenth anniversary of Israel.

The educational program, combined with extensive touring throughout the land, will acquaint the participants with the land and the people. The religious and cultural program will include receptions given by leading figures in all walks of Israel life, including rabbinical authorities, government representatives, and education officials.

In addition to the varied cultural activities, there will be a wholesome recreational program, including athletics and other projects of interest to young people on a summer holiday. Of course, there will be full guidance and supervision at all times.

The Jewish Agency and the American Zionist Council will again co-sponsor the thirteenth annual summer institute, in Israel. This affords young students, aged sixteen to eighteen; and older students, aged eighteen to twenty-five, an opportunity to visit and study Israel at low cost, and under expert direction, for seven weeks, including field trips to all parts of Israel; study groups, lectures, social and cultural events, meeting with top leaders in science, arts, and government; and a work period at an agricultural settlement.

Travel agents; and the Canadian offices, of these groups, at the Zionist Building, 2025 University Street, Montreal, will give further information.

Greek Line's Luxury Flagship, Olympia, Now Has A Kosher Kitchen; Will Call At Haifa Seven Times This Season On Mediterranean Route

The Olympia, 23,000-ton luxury flagship of the Greek Line, now has a kosher kitchen. The move was made in view of an increased schedule of calls at Haifa by the Olympia on her New York-Mediterranean route during 1961.

The vessel, largest and fastest in regular service from New York to Israel, will call at Haifa seven times from March 29, through November 2. Sailing dates from New York for voyages to Israel are March 17, April 14, May 11, July 28, August 24, September 22 and October 20. Calls at Boston for passengers on the day following departure from New York will be made on the May, September and October sailings.

Prior to the installment of the new kosher kitchen, the Olympia had been serving top-quality prepared kosher food on request of passengers during the past several years. However, according to S. V. H. Upjohn, Greek Line general sales manager, even the finest prepared foods did not enable the preparation of specialty dishes and the variety of kosher foods which will now be available on request.

With the addition of this new kitchen, Mr. Upjohn stated, the quality and preparation of the kosher cuisine will be second to none, and will be supervised by a Mashgiach who will travel on all voyages to Haifa.

The Olympia is a 21-knot vessel accommodating 1,307 passengers in two classes on her transatlantic sailings. The luxury liner offers 22 public rooms, including air conditioned dining rooms, a two-story theatre, gaily decorated lounges, libraries and cocktail bars, plus two swimming pools and broad decks for relaxation, sports and promenading.

A unique feature of all the voyages is the Greek Line's TRIP (Travelers' Recreation-Information Program), in which educators from Europe and America arrange language classes, illustrated lectures on art, history and architecture, travel tip talks, parties, quiz shows, dances and talent nights.

Calls enroute to Haifa are made at Lisbon, Naples, Messina, Piraeus and Cyprus on all sailings, but the March 17 voyage, which calls at Naples and Piraeus.

TIME TO GET GOING!

New Airport In Rome Will Be Hub Of Intercontinental Air Travel

It is the intention of the Italian authorities that the Leonardo da Vinci airport will become the European hub of intercontinental air communications. Ciampino was far too small to play such a role. The new airport, instead, has been designed for 400 planes and 6,000 passengers a day. Its potential capacity can be increased without difficulty.

Most Americans arriving at Rome by plane first catch sight of the new airport as they come winging inland from the Tyrrhenian Sea. It lies little more than a mile from the seashore north of the small port where the Tiber debouches into the Tyrrhenian at Fiumicino. Close by are the excavations of the port built in Ostia Antica by the Emperor Claudius, who reigned A.D. 41 to 54.

The land is very low-lying, the runways being barely six feet above the sea level. The choice of the site has, indeed, been severely criticized on the score that it is swampy and that continuous pumping is necessary when it rains to keep the runways free of water.

Quite possibly, however, the swampy ground near Fiumicino was chosen deliberately, for the authorities wanted the airport to be in a deserted area, where the noise of the jets would disturb few people. In Fiumicino, the roar of the jets now interferes only with the placidity of Fregene, a small seaside resort north of the airport.

The original intention was that that airport should be inaugurated before the opening of the Olympic Games last year. Delays gave rise to reports that the main runway was sinking into the sea of mud and slime lying underneath it. These reports have been categorically denied, writes Arnaldo Cortesi, in the New York Times. The main runway was tested by hundreds of planes landing under full load and came through with flying colors, it is said. Minor defects of the secondary runway have been repaired.

The main runway is a giant 12,000 feet long and 200 feet wide. It runs in an approximately north-south direction parallel to the coast. The secondary runway, 6,800 by 200 feet, is at right angles to the first and runs inland from it. The airport occupies 3,750 acres. To give their readers a visual impression of how much land this is, the Italian press said that it is a surface larger than that occupied by the entire city of Florence.

The buildings of the air terminal are at the southern end. In addition to the main building, which houses all the facilities for departing and arriving passengers and the ticket counters of the thirty-five or more airlines operating at Rome, there is a control tower, a hangar capable of housing four of the largest jets, a fuel reservoir, barracks for frontier police, customs guards, firemen and other militarized personnel, a small church, an artificial lake, a park for 6,000 cars and a gigantic statue of Leonardo da Vinci, the artist and inventor after whom the project was named.

The main building is a three-floor block, 620 feet long by 280 feet wide and 60 feet high. On either side of it are the two "fingers," each stretching a distance of 1,400 feet. The ground floor of the main building, at the level of the runways, contains the luggage department, kitchens, laundry, postal services, boiler room, air-conditioning equipment, and the like.

On the floor above are the airline counters and all services for handling passengers. These include an enormous waiting room, post office, telephones, banks, shops, hospital and nursery. On the next floor are restaurants, bars, rest rooms, a small hotel and the airport and airline offices.

Completion of the Leonardo da Vinci complex as an efficient, swift transportation adjunct for Rome still depends on quick access to the field and also on the expenditure of more millions. A step in that direction has been taken by the building of road spurs to the airport terminal from two Autostrada, or express highways, that already run between Rome and Ostia Antica, which is the Jones Beach of the area and close to the field. Eventually it is expected that the two Autostrada must be made one-way avenues in either direction.

A major development will be the building of an electric railroad between Leonardo da Vinci and Rome. Four miles of this line have already been built, starting from the basement of the terminal building itself. Eventually, passengers arriving and departing will be able to drop down — or come up — by elevators to or from the electric trains. The line will end at the present joint airlines' terminal building at Via G. Giolitti, 34, in mid-Rome.

After running underground to beyond the edge of the field, the electric line will surface and continue above-ground to the outskirts of Rome. Here, it again will duck under the ground to avoid the congestion of city streets and proceed to its station under the terminal building.

The entire distance to be traversed is eighteen miles. It is estimated that three years will be needed to complete the line. By that time, according to the vocal opposition press, costs will have risen by $100,000,000. This is doubtless an exaggeration, but the cost will surely be great.

Cunard Is First Again In Trans-Atlantic Traffic; Also Has Luxury Cruises From New York

As in previous years, the Cunard Line again carried the largest number of passengers across the Atlantic by sea during 1960, according to an announcement by The Cunard Steam-Ship Company Limited here.

The total carried reached 207,563 which is approximately 24 per cent of the combined total of passengers carried by all the trans-Atlantic steamship lines last year. The continuing popularity of the world's largest superliners Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary is demonstrated by the fact that they carried a combined total of approximately 110,800 passengers in 1960, representing 17 per cent of the total passengers transported in the north Atlantic trade.

Cunard Line cruises from New York by the Caronia, Mauretania and Britannic also proved highly popular. In all a total of 9,626 passengers enjoyed the sun and fun offered by these vacation voyages in 1960.

The Cunard passenger fleet is the largest on the Atlantic, comprising 10 liners headed by the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary and totalling 348,734 tons. In 1961 the Cunard Line has scheduled a total of 275 transatlantic sailings to and from New York and Canadian ports including 88 by the Queens, and 24 by the 22,000-ton Sylvania, the newest Cunard liner, which has replaced the recently retired Britannic in the New York, Cobh, Liverpool service. Cunard will provide an average of more than five sailings a week.

The 1961 Cunard cruise schedule covers a total of twelve cruises including seven Mauretania cruises to the West Indies and South America, plus a 95-day Great World cruise, three Mediterranean cruises in spring, summer and fall and a summer North Cape cruise in the luxury liner Caronia.

The Cunard Line has arranged four cruises during this spring, summer and fall that will see the Caronia in as far-apart places as Norway's North Cape and Odessa on the Black Sea. All four of these cruises by the Caronia will start from New York. The first will be the Spring Mediterranean Cruise sailing on May 8, taking 39 days and visiting 17 ports. Rates for these cruises include return passage in other Cunard liners, including the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, so that passengers, therefore, may enjoy unlimited stopover privileges while touring Britain or the Continent before returning home.

KLM, Reaching 108 Cities, Offers Service, Variety Of Travel Planning

KLM, Royal Dutch Airlines, offers the Multi-Stopover Plan, which makes visits possible to many European cities, for the fare of one. KLM, serving 108 cities, in seventy-four countries, on all continents, offers wide variety in travel planning, anywhere.

For instance, with KLM's bonus package plan, there is an attractive selection of all-inclusive programs in 26 cities in Europe, and all arrangements, First Class and De Luxe. KLM will arrange European Ski Tours, of fourteen days, at ski resorts in Austria, Switzerland, and or France, and a week's skiing combined with a week in one of Europe's capitals.

KLM's Pay Later Plan is flexible, and makes it possible for you to plan an excursion to Europe and back, with a small down payment. During the early winter, to the end of March, KLM will plan a trip on the family fare plan, or short, seventeen-day trips, with the same superb service which has made KLM famous. On these seventeen-day trips, for instance, KLM will give the same baggage allowance for economy fare plans, as for regular fare.

Deep holes or unused wells, trenches, or old mineshafts are death traps unless they are adequately covered. Rotted wooden lids or covers are no protection. Unless this hole is necessary, it should be filled in.

A Globetrotter Of Long Standing Offers Tips On How To Tip In France, Germany, Italy And Elsewhere As Another Tourist Season Takes Shape

BY HANS KONINGSBERGER, IN THE NEW YORK TIMES MAGAZINE, REPRINTED BY PERMISSION

Hundreds of thousands of Americans are now engaged in comparative studies of travel folders and their bank accounts. It looks like another boom year in tourism — figures from the Department of Commerce indicate that Americans will spend more than $2 billion on foreign travel in 1961, much of it for European trips.

Of this sum, approximately 60 per cent will go to hotels, restaurants, cafes and places of entertainment, and this means that the respectable amount of at least $120 million, or one-tenth, will change hands under the mysterious rules of the institution called tipping.

For many Americans abroad tipping is a great worry. Somehow most of us are more afraid of the displeasure of a doorman than that of a policeman; and the boat passengers huddled in consultation toward the end of a voyage are not concerned about the perils of the deep but about the proper tips for the stewards. Each year a number of tourists come back from Europe feeling that they have been victimized, or even robbed, by the tip-hungry in their paths. And for some the itchy palm has actually spoiled the big trip.

Tip struggles between Americans and Europeans are so common that many Europeans believe that in the United States tipping is deemed undemocratic and does not exist. This ingenuous idea will bring a bitter smile to the face of a New Yorker. Our own New York is the tipping capital of the world; Mr. William Scott, a Kentuckian who published a book against tipping in the year 1916, suggested that the Barbary pirates had been reincarnated as New York waiters and were thus finally getting even with the Yankees. But for Americans living in areas where tipping is more restrained than it is in New York, the avidity of a big city like Paris or Rome will seem something typically foreign. And the schism of language is always there to foster ill will between tipper and tippee.

Let it not be suggested, though, that there is no fire to the smoke of the tipping battle. The half-truth, half-myth of "those rich Americans" is still current abroad; quite a number of Europeans still consider overtipping the normal thing for an American to do. Americans in Europe perpetuate this idea: they go on thinking in terms of dollars, and here America's higher standard of living comes into play.

A perfectly respectable European tip seems too low to an American when he starts translating it into dollars and cents. (He shouldn't, of course; he should try to think in the local currency and carry it with him in small change.) A guilder or a bob or a heavy franc mean more on their native soil than a quarter here. London taxi drivers remember the story of Joe Louis, who one day during the war handed a cabbie three pounds, six shillings and a tip when told that the fare was three and six. Joe had definitely not been studying the local currency.

An executive of the American Express in London realized after a while that he tipped more than his English friends. He is sticking to this now, he says, because he feels he's making a bit of propaganda for the United States that way. This is a dubious argument. Penny- and pound-wise Europeans will just think the man doesn't know any better.

To add to the confusion, in several countries tips change hands where they wouldn't in America. In Western Europe, for instance, most drivers leave a small tip when they buy gasoline. Ushers in French movie houses are tipped, and croupiers in casinos. In Dutch movie houses the man who hands you your tickets expects, for mysterious reasons, to be tipped. An older generation of Europeans often tips bus and street-car conductors. Servants in private houses are tipped by guests. But none of this is necessary and these people, unlike waiters, do not depend on their tips.

Porters at stations and piers? Anywhere in the world they are a race of their own, a race of melancholy and cynical men afraid to look content and afraid to quote a rate for fear that you had planned to give more. But a European porter even at his wiliest will not daunt the American tourist who has had his baptism of fire from the desperadoes of West Forty-fourth Street or Hoboken.

Let us now survey the battlefield as it presents itself to the American approaching Europe by boat or plane. As he nears enemy territory, he finds England on the left flank. No great strategic problem here: good old old-fashioned England has tipping very much under control. Changing times have not made English waiters feel obliged to do a bad job, nor has it made them afraid of treating their customers like gentlemen. The maitre d' of the big London restaurant Quo Vadis told me that many of his continental customers wrongly assume that the bill includes a service charge and thus leave no tip. His waiters are expressly forbidden to point out this mistake, either in word or by one of the many gestures waiters have in their repertory for such occasions.

Here, then, tipping is still your privilege and not a duty, which is as it should be. English personnel in general seldom flinch when tipped badly, and they are happy, at least outwardly, with the old-fashioned straight 10 per cent. And since local waiters and visiting Americans speak the same language (more or less), the going in the United Kingdom should be smooth.

It is a different story for the American who comes to Europe along the "sun route." Italy, the soft underbelly of the Continent, as Churchill called it, is hard as nails to the disembarking tourist. Especially in the cities, it is the country of the ubiquitous touch.

There are plenty of Government regulations designed to keep the peace between host and traveler, but Italians are traditionally not too impressed by Government regulations. And there is a host of hangers on in that beautiful country for whom no rules or regulations exist at all. These extra-curricular tippees, far from providing extra service, just make tourist life miserable.

Pompeii is ruined, if that is a permissible metaphor, by its tip-hungry guides; one would like to empty one's pockets at the entrance in exchange for being left alone.

In the Aquarium of Naples, I was followed around from fish to fish by a guard reading out the signs in broken English. He wanted me to feel the electric eel and he fed some bloated-looking crabs for me, no doubt for the tenth time that day. When none of this availed, he stamped off in great anger to his post at the door, from which he tried to sell me a dried sea horse when I left. His face is the only exhibit I remember from that splendid collection.

Italy requires a deft hardness. If the tourist fights too much, his trip will change into a crusade and his fun will be spoiled; but if he doesn't put up any fight, he will be robbed and sorry afterward. Here, as on all battlefields, one shouldn't look for trouble, but when it comes one should stare it unflinchingly in the eye.

In the tipping lists, France figures somewhere between Italy and England. It's dangerous to generalize about a nation, but I would venture the opinion that the French hotel owner, waiter or cab

New Tourist Attraction In Israel Is 18 Hole Golf Course On Mediterranean Coast

When Israel's newest attraction, the country's first 18-hole golf course, was officially dedicated, the opening ceremonies were marked by the participation of Sam Snead of the United States, and Harry Weetman of the United Kingdom, in the first international golf match to be held in the Land of the Bible.

While the course itself is unique in that it is Israel's first, its location at Caesarea on Israel's Mediterranean coastline is also worthy of description. For, when the Roman legions marched on Palestine thousands of years ago they made Caesarea their port and fortress.

Caesarea has long been a favorite site for tourists to visit for here may be seen the ruins of Roman installations. For the contemporary golfer a ball hit into the rough might uncover an ancient Roman coin or the remains of a once-graceful Greek vase.

Teeing off were the Hon. Abba Eban, former Ambassador of Israel to the U.S., and now Minister of Culture and Education, and Baron Edmond de Rothschild, chairman of the Caesarea Golf and Country Club. Mr. Eban is also chairman of the Club's Management Committee. Lord Cohen, P.C., Captain of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrew, Scotland, was present.

Another distinction of the 7,000-yard course is the fact that golfers will be able to play here throughout most of the year. The club has been built entirely and exclusively with private funds of the Rothschild family. The late James de Rothschild, an avid golfer, always wanted to play at the picturesque and historical spot. This January, his widow handed over the key to her nephew, Edmond de Rothschild.

Tourists can now see the Biblical sights of Jerusalem, Mt. Zion and the Dead Sea via helicopter. This bird's eye view of antiquity costs $18 for a half-hour flight. The heliport is located on the grounds of the Holyland Hotel on the outskirts of Jerusalem.

EUROPE EXPECTS YOU- TIME TO GET GOING!

The Recognized Travel Agent Gives The Impartial, Reliable Service The Traveller Needs

Impartial advice is the most valuable service you get from your travel agent. He is an independent business man. No one underwrites him. No one owns him. He recommends the transportation company, the hotel, the resort and the season which will give his client the best vacation he can afford; arranges for passport and visa.

Most of the travel agent's services cost the customer nothing, because he receives commissions from the hotels, resorts and transportation companies. But there are exceptions.

Foreign and domestic independent tours (known to the trade as FITs and DITs) are custom-made for a client and usually involve a vast amount of work in planning and checking connections and timing. The agent's price includes a charge for this outlay of time and labor. In escorted tours, there is the added cost of the guide.

One of the most popular vacations is the package tour which includes transportation, accommodations, sightseeing, meals and other features. Package tour operators are the wholesalers of the trade; the agents who book them are the retailers.

The tourist can go as an independent tourist or as a member of a group through travel agent planning very easily; or can arrange things himself. It is much easier to make all arrangements through the travel agent, since he has experience and know-how, and has much more available to him in contacts and information than the person making plans alone.

For the person who wants to go as an independent traveller, or in a tour, the travel agent can arrange every date, transportation arrangements and hotel accommodation ahead of time with great ease. This is particularly important for the person staying close to the most popular tourist spots, since every good hotel in every main city is booked ahead in advance by groups, or by travel agents arranging and planning well in advance. The travel agent will take care of everything, once he knows how much the traveller wants to spend, how much time he has and when he wants to go.

As a member of an escorted tour the traveller has practically nothing to worry about. His tour leader takes care of everything except personal extras. Sometimes travellers are part of a tour where arrangements are made for them to go from city to city by themselves, being put on trains or planes by a tour leader in one city and being met in the next city by the next leader to take over the group. A recognized travel agent is the most reliable way of planning.

Trans-Canada Air Lines, The Official Speedholder To Britain, Offers New Non-Stop Jet Services

Trans-Canada Air Lines offers new DC-8 jet flights to Europe, with new non-stop service to Paris, and jets to Glasgow and London, as usual. By June, TCA jet services to Paris will be increased to seven a week, and five of these will be non-stop, the other two going by Shannon. In addition, with TCA/BOAC joint services, low-cost propeller service is also available to Britain.

TCA offers special Fly Now-Pay later Plans, Family Fare Discounts; and the seventeen-day Economy Excursion Fare, available to March 31.

In January, Trans-Canada Air Lines started jet flights to Shannon, Paris, Brussels, Dusseldorf, Zurich and Vienna, allowing the trans-Atlantic passenger to step aboard a TCA jet in Montreal, and to arrive at the destination of choice without changing planes, without worry over baggage, or onward connections. Of course, there are through flights from these places to other points — with a jet plane a day leaving for Europe until March, and then with higher frequencies during the summer.

Trans-Canada Air Lines, the official speedholder from Canada to Britain, sees to it that no matter where you live in Canada or where you want to travel in Europe, there's a TCA flight tailored to your travel plans, and a choice of first class or economy travel.

How To Pack Well, For Pleasurable Travelling!

Today's luggage has been designed for lightness and durability; as well as providing every assistance to the traveller: clothes don't crush when they are carefully packed in the newest luggage which is planned for every taste and style. A handy thing to remember is that name and address should be taped in each piece of luggage.

Every traveller should have passport number written down in each piece of luggage; an extra pair of glasses and sun glasses; extra flints and fluid for a cigarette lighter; spot remover; toilet soap; ball point pen and refills; cigarettes (can be bought on shipboard) band-aid, travel alarm clock; disposable tissue; wash cloths in plastic bags; sea-sick pills; extra passport pictures should the traveller need an extra visa at the last minute; and any good remedy against dysentery.

The best luggage is lightweight luggage where suits and trousers can be packed easily without crushing. A small folding extra bag is always handy to use for packing up gifts and purchases; and luggage should always be light enough for the traveller to carry it himself if he needs to. It makes it quicker in getting from place to place, and much simpler to get through customs easily.

Man-made fibres are a boon to the travelling man in a hurry. No-iron fabrics mean he is never caught with his shirts at the laundry and packing need take only minutes. He can travel for weeks with only the shirt on his back once he has mastered the drip-dry technique.

The lady traveller should have an adaptable wardrobe where the skirts and blouses can be mixed and matched. A good all-purpose suit, an all-important "little black dress"; a cocktail skirt and blouses; a folding or collapsible hat of jersey or non-crushable silk; nylon lingerie; a stole of wool which is light and packable; a glamorous sweater, and an all-purpose sweater will always come in handy; as well as a knitted jersey dress, almost indispensable because it does not crush; a light coat with a detachable lining; comfortable walking shoes and a pair of dress-up shoes. Make-up in plastic bags; a big, "easy-to-carry" purse, with lots of compartments; lightweight luggage, all make the trip easier and more pleasant. The least extra packages which can be carried make it much easier for the lady traveller since there are not always porters available and neither are there always men travellers who are able to carry her packages as well as theirs.

A small bag with what the lady traveller needs as basic requirements is a handy extra since often, if there is heavy luggage it may be shipped ahead, or it may not arrive at the same time as the traveller at the destination.

When packing a suitcase, don't overlook the space inside shoes, for belts, brushes, and other small items; and each pair should be in plastic bag.

Seminary Honors Lehman As Humanitarian

Former U. S. Senator Herbert H. Lehman, honored by The Jewish Theological Seminary of America in recognition of his 15 years of service as chairman of that institution's board of overseers, praised the Seminary for serving "not only Judaism and America, but the whole world, faithfully and well." Before a group of 100 well-wishers at a Chancellor's reception in the dining hall of the Seminary, Senator Lehman said: "I deserve no credit for having served, having had the privilege of serving, this great institution. I profited more through that service than the Seminary profited through my service to it."

He added that, through the years, he has found "there is no fundamental difference among the various denominations of Judaism" and that during "these last 15 years I have learned more about Judaism than I had learned in the first 67 years of my life." The 14-volume Soncino edition of the Bible was presented to Senator Lehman on behalf of the Seminary by Samuel H. Daroff, of Philadelphia, Pa., who lauded Mr. Lehman as a "humanitarian in the warmest, deepest, and broadest meaning of the word" and a "true interpreter of the principles of our religion and of our American Bill of Rights."

Dr. Louis Finkelstein, chancellor of the Seminary, and host of the reception, extended his thanks and felicitations to his honored guest. He cited Senator Lehman's active participation in shaping the destiny of the Seminary and in helping to develop it into the kind of religious educational institution which "no amount of money could create today." Alan M. Stroock, chairman of the Seminary's Board of Directors, presided over the program, which included brief addresses by lay leaders who accepted for themselves assignments that would help to perpetuate the work of the Seminary. They made it known that they wished to serve the Seminary and Judaism "in the tradition of those great American Jews" who, at the turn of the century, nurtured the institution until it became a recognized world center of Jewish learning.

Israeli Military Hero Is Touring U.S. For United Jewish Appeal

A tough-minded military leader filled with compassion, a quiet man who was a top leader in one of the most sensational military campaigns in modern history, a "non-political" general dedicated to making a unifying and educative force of the army under his command, these are some of the seeming paradoxes which describe Maj. Gen. Haim Laskov, retired Chief of Staff of the Israel Defense Forces. When he left Israel's top military post on January 1, at the age of forty-one years, Gen. Laskov had completed twenty-three years of formal military service. His entire adult life and much of his boyhood were dedicated to fighting for the freedom and security of the people of Israel.

Assuming positions of military responsibility from the age of fourteen, Gen. Laskov has compiled a brilliant record of training and triumph during the brief military history of the State of Israel, Liberator of Nazareth from Iraqi troops at the age of twenty-nine, during the 1948 War of Independence, hero of a lightning armored strike against Rafah in the 1956 Sinai desert fighting, which has been compared to the best campaigns of Patton and Montgomery, in World War Two, he has played a major role in the organization and training which have made the Israel army the most impressive and disciplined defense force in the Middle East.

Under his influence, the Israel Defense Forces have also contributed importantly to education and citizenship training. Through Hebrew language, history, vocational training and other courses, Israel's armed forces have been decisive in preparing new immigrants for Israel citizenship and in welding diverse national elements into a homogeneous whole. It was said that "no soldier leaves Laskov's army without completing a basic education."

The young general's lifelong concern with the problem of effective immigrant absorption was crystallized during his year as head of the Southern Command, just before he became Chief of Staff. Responsible for security in the Negev region, more than half the land surface of Israel, he was directly concerned with the safety

Zim Line Has Full Summer Schedule; And Winter Sailings For Israel Anniversary Fetes

Zim Israel liners Jerusalem and Zion will plan two trips in March to accommodate travellers going to Israel for Passover, and in time to join the gala Independence Day celebrations marking the thirteenth anniversary of Israel.

The Jerusalem, fully air-conditioned, with accommodation for 570 passengers, will sail from New York on March 15, arriving at Haifa on March 29. The Zion, with accommodation for 300 passengers, will sail from New York on March 17, to arrive at Haifa on March 31.

The Independence Day celebrations will start on April 20, and will be marked by fireworks, military parades, Independence Balls, and other public events. Passengers unable to make the March 15 or 17 sailings may leave from New York on the Israel, on April 5, arriving at Haifa on April 19.

The Jerusalem, Zion and Israel are modern, air-conditioned, stabilizer-equipped luxury liners. All staterooms on the Israel and the Zion, and 95 per cent of those on the Jerusalem, are outside, most with private or semi-private facilities. Each has a full range of public rooms, and tiled, outdoor swimming pools. The cuisine is strictly kosher, under rabbinical supervision.

Italian Line's New Luxury Flagship, Leonardo Da Vinci, Came Into Service In 1960, Peak Year For The Line

1960 signalled the highest number of eastbound passengers transported on Italian Line ships in the 14-year postwar period of 1947 to 1960, according to Bruno Cucchi, Passenger Traffic Manager of the Line, in the United States and Canada.

The Line carried a total of 46,061 passengers from New York to Mediterranean ports in 1960, which, in comparison with the previously highest-year 1958 total of 43,022, shows an increase of 7 per cent. Italian Line, which holds second place among North Atlantic carriers in the number of persons transported, both ways, has more than doubled its eastbound carryings during the period of 1954 to 1960, when 276,168 passengers were carried out of New York, as against 136,966 passengers for the previous period of seven years.

When Italian Line ships first commenced their postwar operations in 1947, 13,110 passengers were carried eastbound on the twin motorvessels Vulcania and Saturnia. These vessels now operate on this route together with the Cristoforo Colombo and the new luxury flagship, Leonardo Da Vinci. These four ships will be supplemented during the high season months of 1961, by the M/V Augustus, which will return on the North American run for a 6-month period beginning in May, 1961.

By 1954, following Italian Line's resumption of its own operations in North America in July, the total eastbound carryings had risen to 32,347, moving steadily forward each year, until the 43,022 level was reached in 1958. "The Europe-bound trend that has come about over the years has given us in 1960 our biggest tourist year", said Mr. Cucchi. "There is every indication", he added, "that 1961 will be an even bigger year".

driver, fond though he may be of money, is too proud to be obviously dishonest.

The French, when in contact with foreigners and especially with Americans, demonstrate a kind of surly irritation. This is partly a post-World War II phenomenon, wearing off of late; some of it probably goes right back to the days of Joan of Arc. The nervous tourist tries overtipping as a means to assuage these frowns he sees around him; back home he gets even with the French by warning his friends against their perfidy, which isn't fair.

Many American complaints about French gouging have their origin in misunderstanding on the part of the tourist who got lost in the mysteries of couvert, taxe, surtaxe and service non compris. French menus and hotel bills are full of small print and a "five-franc dinner" may cost ten by the time you are out on the sidewalk. (This is just kindness on the part of the proprietor, who tries to soften the initial blow.)

But French waiters are true professionals, who will appreciate savoir faire in everything their patrons do with their food, drink and money; overtipping is not the way to these men's hearts. Ignore their sulkiness — they're just worried about their Sahara oil stock.

Ignore, too, the signs in English, "Tip Not Included," which have been plastered all over the Paris Opéra and other places where tourists go. Their language gives them away. Don't tip where the locals don't. Signs may tell the visitor he shouldn't tip but they can't tell him he should tip; a tip that isn't optional is a contradiction in terms.

In the Benelux, as in Scandinavia, Germany and Switzerland, this fact is no longer officially recognized. There a service charge has been almost universally adopted for larger hotels and restaurants and even for taxicabs. Americans like this; no longer do they have to find their way in a jungle of outstretched hands in a hotel lobby. The local income tax collectors prefer the system, too.

In some places the tourist trade abides by the rules more strictly than in others. In German and Scandinavian restaurants waiters often refuse to accept "a little bit extra" over the service charge. Elsewhere, waiters like to hover around and indicate that a service charge, even if it is 15 per cent of the bill, is in their eyes not the real tip.

Tourists shouldn't fall for this, for the trade can't have it both ways. Actually, the little trick of not telling a tourist that the service charge is included in the bill is at present probably the main European dodge in the tipping war with Americans.

The Amstel Hotel, one of the best in Holland, leaves its waiters the choice of waiting for a tip or putting a straight 15 per cent service charge on the bill and refusing any extras. It surprised me to learn that almost none of the waiters gamble: they settle for the 15 per cent. Obviously, even in a de luxe hotel the modern traveler is a lot more conservative than his father or grandfather.

Farther east in Europe tipping suddenly becomes rare. In small towns in Yugoslavia and Greece, servants often take so much trouble that one expects them to be tip-hunters on a grand scale; then, when T-hour comes, they put the cynical tourist to shame by refusing to be tipped at all. Such integrity may not survive the present influx of foreigners in these countries.

Communist countries are trying to do away with all tipping; and it may come as a surprise to the plagued American tourist that a similar trend is under way in the countries of Western Europe.

"POURBOIRE" OR "TRINKGELT" OR "MANCIA"

Prefiguring this development is the fact that very few European waiters today still work for their own tips. English hotels and restaurants, for example, pool all tips in the trone (a French word once used for the poorbox) and divide them later, with the headwaiter or bell captain taking a third or more.

Whether you give that splendid waiter in the Dorchester a pound note or show yourself to be a "stiff," which means a man who doesn't tip at all, the difference to him between the two extremes is less than a shilling. Under the trone system the personal bond created by tipping is already no longer very personal.

In addition, in England the Labor Government established minimum wages for catering personnel and thus ended their complete dependence on tips. In most other countries of Europe the governments have gone even further and have sponsored laws that regulate wages and tips both. As a rule in Europe, that service charge on a bill is prescribed by law. And these laws were written in a definite effort to abolish all tipping eventually.

With the service charge, the relationship between beer toter and beer toter has undergone a basic change. A service charge means that the waiter has a share in the gross income of the house. Such a share in the business is a fine incentive, and perhaps a more modern one, than tips. But it is an incentive that comes from the owner and not from the guest, and it tends to make all guests equal. And once the service charge is universally established, there will be no reason to continue carrying it on the bill as a separate item.

Why do we tip? A French lawyer who wrote a treatise on the subject pointed out that there is a silent contract between client and owner of a cafe or hotel, but no bond between client and employee of an owner. Tipping establishes such a bond. But this doesn't explain why such a bond is deemed necessary — no one tips the employees in a store.

One answer is that to be waited on with food and drink, to be driven around or to be shaved, comes much closer to the old master-servant relationship than to be sold something in a department store. Tipping expresses this relationship.

Tippable services also offer much room for differentiation in quality. A good waiter makes a dinner and a bad waiter mars it, without either one doing anything unusual. Samuel Johnson, who was always fascinated by the mechanics of life, wrote about a dinner in a London inn called the Pine-Apple:

"I dined very well for eightpence . . . it cost the rest a shilling, for they drank wine, but I had a cut of meat for sixpence, and bread for a penny, and gave the waiter a penny; so that I was quite well served, nay, better than the rest, for they gave the waiter nothing."

A penny won't do the trick these days, but the principle is clear.

Old London coffeehouses, incidentally, had a box on the counter labeled "To Insure Promptitude" — more likely a play on the word "tip" than its origin, I would say, for "tipping" was once thieves' cant for "handing over something, especially money."

Psychologists probe much deeper into our souls when asked to explain tipping. They draw a straight line back from the 10 per cent for the waiter to the burnt offering of the savage to his gods. Man has always felt slightly guilty and afraid of being envied when having a good time; and, as he once propitiated the jealous gods, so he now propitiates the people who serve him.

Not only does he buy off their jealousy, modern psychology says, but he also atones for acting superior or possibly even rude toward these servants. Fear is his motive — fear of envy, fear of not being accepted in his role as temporary master. And, on the other side of the fence, the less pride a waiter feels in his profession, the bigger a tip he expects to pay for his "humiliation." American waiters are a case in point.

As for the future of tipping, it seems reasonable to suppose that people who want extra service will always be prepared to pay extra. But the trend in general is definitely the other way. Of American tourists in Europe more and more are people with restricted budgets; the tourist trade has to adjust itself to them in order to survive.

This New Tourist wants no more than reasonable service, and he looks at the waiter bringing his wine as a man holding a job like any other. Indeed, the summer after the American sips his wine, his waiter may visit the United States and find the former tourist serving him his milk-shake. In that brave new eat-and-run world, roles will be reversible, and there'll be no more need to bribe gods or servants.

Thus, one day we may look back nostalgically on tipping as a fashion from a leisurely and gentlemanly, if less democratic, past. Think of that during your next New York taxi ride or Paris night club visit, and you will tip with a smile.

British Overseas Airways Assures Passengers Of Kosher Food Supplies At Passover, And All Year

British Overseas Airways Corporation assures Canadian Jews that requests for Kosher meals will be scrupulously observed.

Jewish passengers usually mention at the time they are making their reservations that they will require these specially prepared meals. This information is then passed along to the airline's catering department, which makes all the arrangements. However, BOAC makes provision for last minute requests by maintaining supplies of Kosher food at airports along its routes wherever practicable.

Facilities for preparing Kosher food, under strict supervision, are available in Montreal. In addition to individual requests, certain BOAC services always carry a proportion of Kosher meals, for example those operating into and out of Tel Aviv and Teheran. On occasions, complete charter flights consisting of as many as eighty or ninety passengers may be provisioned entirely with Kosher food.

In addition to the religious requirements Kosher meals have to satisfy those of the International Air Transport Association, which governs standards for meals served to first, tourist and economy class passengers.

All Kosher meals served in BOAC aircraft are packed in cardboard boxes and the cups, plates, knives, spoons and forks in these packs are expendable, so that the Passover requirements of new or sterilized equipment during that period present no problem. The containers and other catering equipment with which Kosher food comes into contact before it is packed into boxes are either sterilized or replaced during Passover.

In the production of Kosher foods for passengers, BOAC combines experience of many years and streamlined methods appropriate to the modern jet age.

MARRIAGES

BEDER-BOCALTER

The marriage of Miss Ruth Bocalter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bocalter, 43 Overbrook Place, to Dr. Edward Beder, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Beder, 1350 Dundas Street West, was solemnized on Sunday, December 25, 1960 at half-past five o'clock, at the Murray House, Rabbi S. Kanter officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white, heavy brocade gown with a leaf design. The gown was fashioned with a wide neckline; and long sleeves; and a full-length skirt, which extended to a cathedral train. Her pearl-bead crown held a fingertip veil of silk illusion. She carried a white prayer book, adorned with white orchids and stephanotis. Mrs. Fred Swartz and Mrs. Norman Grayson were matrons of honour.

The former wore a dark green, peau de soie gown; and the latter, a light green, peau de soie gown. Each had a matching headband; and carried a cascade of pink roses. Risa Lerner, cousin of the groom, was the flower girl. She wore a white organza dress, with a bouffant skirt. She wore a white flowered headband; and carried a basket of red rose petals. Harold Einstoss was the best man. The ring-bearer was Ian Grayson. A dinner and reception followed the ceremony, and two hundred guests were received. Mrs. Bocalter, mother of the bride, chose a grey silk gown; with short sleeves and a sheath skirt. She had a matching hat; and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Beder, mother of the groom, was attired in a turquoise-shaded, silk chiffon sheath gown; and a matching hat. She had a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Ann Lerner, 89 McCaul Street, grandmother of the groom, wore a plum-coloured lace dress; and had a corsage of pink roses. Dr. and Mrs. Edward Beder spent their wedding trip on a motor trip to the United States. They are residing at 107 Redpath Avenue.

of thousands of newly-arrived immigrants. Normally taciturn, Gen. Laskov becomes eloquent when describing the need for an accelerated build-up of the Negev as the best way "to match the magnitude of the challenge of future ingathering." The first assignment he has accepted after retiring as Chief of Staff is a U.S. speaking tour on behalf of the United Jewish Appeal, which supports large-scale programs of immigrant absorption in Israel.

Gen. Laskov's assumption of command in the Negev followed soon after Israel's smashing success in the Sinai campaign in October, 1956. Much of the effectiveness of the Israel forces in that campaign, according to the Jewish Observer, was attributable to Gen. Laskov's two years of planned training, as Deputy Chief of Staff in 1955, and as Commander of the Armored Corps in 1956. It is significant of Gen. Laskov's passionate belief in the value of education that, when he was recalled to be Deputy Chief of Staff, he was a student at Oxford. He had entered that university at the age of thirty-four years to complete an education which had constantly been interrupted by his full military life.

Haim Laskov became a fighter for freedom and independence in 1930, before he was eleven, when his father, an immigrant settler from Russia, was killed during Arab riots in Palestine. He became a runner for Haganah, pre-Statehood Jewish defense force, and was active in it all through his boyhood. While still a teen-ager at the Reali Secondary School in Haifa, he was a Haganah platoon commander and Chief of the school's Haganah communications group. The Reali School turned out two other future Israel Chiefs of Staff: Gen. Yaakov Dori and Gen. Mordecai Makleff.

At the time of the 1936 Arab riots, he was among the pick of Israeli youth chosen to join the "night squads" organized by famed British fighting man, Orde Wingate. He joined the British Army in 1941 and commanded a medium machine-gun platoon in the Jewish Brigade during World War Two, serving in Palestine, Libya, Italy, Holland, and Belgium. A Major at the war's end, he received the rare offer of a permanent Majority in the British Army.

Recognizing his superb training and organizational abilities, Haganah appointed him Director of Military Training after the war, and when the Arabs attacked newly-independent Israel in 1948, he organized Israel's first officers' school. In active combat, in addition to liberating Nazareth, he helped to break the siege of Jerusalem and was a heroic figure in the battle for Latrun. After the cease-fire, he headed the Training Command of the new Israel army and, from 1951 until he left for Oxford, served as Air Force Commander.

Known to all in Israel, from foot-soldier to cabinet minister, as a born commander of courage, integrity, and the ability to make decisions under fire, Gen. Laskov became Chief of Staff at a time of peace in 1958. His goals were, in his own words, "to ensure, with all the authority and ability at my command, that the Israel Defense Forces should be prepared and ready to fight at any time to maintain the efficiency of the forces and equipment; not to relax any demand, heavy or light, which would ensure a high level of deterrent and fighting power." In the view of most observers, he has succeeded in these aims and leaves behind a strengthened and cohesive peacetime force defending comparatively calm borders. Upon his retirement, Prime Minister Ben-Gurion praised his "outstanding talent, complete success, and unbounded devotion."

At forty-one, Haim Laskov keeps himself as physically fit as he was during his schooldays as a boxer and track-and-field man. After four miles of roadwork every morning he puts in a twelve-hour work day. He is an expert yachtsman, a voracious reader, and a collector of pipes and he is fond of recalling that his birthplace in Russia in 1919 (Borisov) was less than a mile from a Napoleonic battle site.

$2,000,000 CAVALCADE THEATER SPARKLING SITE OF PRODUCTIONS
These great stars will each appear in completely new and different 2-hour shows just for you. The special concert-style appearances are simply sensational, and it's absolutely free to you—with nothing sold at these performances. So, there are no distractions, and it costs you nothing additional.
You can be there, too — it's exclusively for our guests!

PROGRAM OF ACTIVITIES
"Never a dull moment" — this will be the theme song at these great, great hotels — exclusively! And, the wonder of it all is that all of it is FREE — included in the low, low hotel rates!
There's something exciting for you — every day — every minute!
Enjoy a romantic cruise aboard our private luxury yacht around the lovely Venetian Islands. There's dancing nightly and complimentary cocktail parties. Like movies? We have late run features for your pleasure. Moonlight swims are always a romantic nightly activity, and we present all-star Aquacades with renowned water performers. Weiner Roasts, Talent Shows with valuable prizes, Water Skiing are perennial hits with our guests.
These activities are under the guiding hand of our lovely social hostesses, always on tap to help you meet new and lasting friends.

FOOD FOR A KING'S TASTE
Fine cuisine is the hallmark of these great oceanfront hotels. Each has won awards, each has something new and unique in food service and presentation that commends them to your sense of the luxurious and delightful. "Eat, hearty!" is a toast that bears fruit at any, and all, of these landmarks of culinary artistry.

BETTER FOR YOUR VACATION IN THE SUN . . . THE TIME WAS NEVER RESERVE NOW FOR THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE!

BROADWAY MUSICAL EXTRAVAGANZA
It's the newest attraction in Miami Beach — and it's exclusively yours! Broadway Musical Extravaganza brings the best of Broadway to you — all the glory and songs of Gershwin, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Jerome Kern, Lerner and Lowe and many others. It's a festival of music from the Great White Way, starring the bright new names and faces of the musical comedy stage, the brightest repertory ever presented.

BE OUR GUEST
Your host and hostess at these fine hotels, Morris and Jean Lansburgh, issue a cordial invitation to you to be their guests at their waterfront home for cocktails, and aboard their yacht for a cruise around Miami Beach. "It will be our sincere pleasure and privilege of welcoming you here, entertaining you and serving you in Miami Beach," say the Lansburghs.

MONTREAL MARRIAGES

GARBER-BROWNSTEIN

The marriage of Miss Vicki Brownstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brownstein, 1997 Goyer Avenue, to Alvin Garber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Garber, 2300 Noel Street, took place at Chevra Kadisha-Bnai Jacob Synagogue, on December 27, at half-past six o'clock. Rabbi J. J. Zlotnick officiated, assisted by Cantor J. Rosenzweig. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white antique satin and Alencon lace, re-embroidered with seed-pearl-beads and crystals. It was cut with a tight-fitted lace bodice; a boat-shaped neckline; cape sleeves; and full skirt with a front panel of seed-pearl-beaded lace. Her veil of tulle illusion was gathered to a crown of seed-pearl-beads; and she carried a prayer book with a white orchid and white satin streamers. Miss Dorothy Garber, sister of the groom, was maid of honour. Her gown of champagne-coloured peau de soie, was made with a square neckline; wide shoulder straps; and a full bouffant skirt. She had a rhinestone tiara; and carried a cascade of white and gold-tinted roses. David Bronwstein, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were: Carl Brownstein, Hyman Brownstein, Frank Garber, Martin Weiner, Giro Bloomstone, Joseph Achtman, Arthur Garvis, Michael Goldenberg, Robert Marcus, S. Lurie, Norman Goodman, and Ralph Gutenplan. White and gold-tinted carnations decorated the Synagogue. Mrs. Brownstein mother of the bride, was in a champagne-coloured, silk gown, embossed with a gold-coloured leaf design. It was styled with a V-neckline; short, pleated sleeves; and sheath skirt with an overskirt of matching lame. Her hat was in gold-coloured, Grecian leaf design. Mrs. Garber, mother of the groom, wore a champagne-coloured peau de soie sheath, made with a lace bodice; a square neckline; and short sleeves. Her hat was of matching material. Their corsages were of white orchids. Mrs. Carl Brownstein, grandmother of the bride, was in a gown of brown lace over champagne-coloured peau de soie. She had a matching feathered hat; and a corsage of white orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Garber spent their wedding trip at the Nevele Country Club, in Ellenville, N. Y., the bride departing in a three-piece, red wool suit. They have taken up residence at 4850 Bourret Avenue. Here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kates, of Vancouver, B. C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Meister, and Mrs. Fanny Goldberg, of Lincolnwood, Ill.

TORONTO MARRIAGES

DONSKY-FELDMAN

The marriage of Miss Marcia Louise Feldman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Feldman, 573 Old Orchard Grove, to Leon Donsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Donsky, 31 Sultana Avenue, took place at Beth Sholom Synagogue, on December 20, at half-past six o'clock. Rabbi David Monson and Rabbi Bernard Rosenweig officiated, assisted by Cantor Henry Wahrman. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in white bombazine, appliqued with lace, and made with a tight-fitted bodice; a square-cut neckline; long, pointed sleeves; and a full skirt ending in a cathedral train. Her shoulder-length, six-tiered veil, was gathered to a crown of crystal beads; and she carried a white prayer book with white orchids and stephanotis. Mrs. A. Kirsh, sister of the bride, was the matron of honour. She wore a red satin gown; with a crystal cummerbund, and full skirt. She had a matching hat; and had a cascade bouquet of red roses. The junior bridesmaids were: Esther Kirsh, and Sandra and Debbie Feldman, nieces of the bride. They wore pink organdy dresses, made with bouffant skirts; and wore matching headbands. Each carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations. Gordon Donsky, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Arthur and Michael Feldman, brothers of the bride; Murray Kirsh, brother-in-law of the bride; Dr. Ronald Feldman, and Bernard Tishman, cousins of the bride; Bernard Donsky, brother of the groom; Jack Donsky, Gordon Goldstein, and Allan Lofsky, cousins of the groom; and Dr. Jerry Greenbaum. Michael Feldman, nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer. A dinner and reception followed at the Synagogue, and four hundred and eighty guests were received. Mrs. Feldman, mother of the bride, chose a mauve peau de soie gown, made with a beaded overskirt. She had a matching hat; and a mauve orchid corsage. Mrs. Donsky, mother of the groom, was attired in a beige peau de soie gown; with a beaded overskirt. She had a matching hat; and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Esther Lofsky, grandmother of the groom, 45 King High Avenue, wore a navy-blue dress; and had a corsage of red roses. Mrs. A. Feldman, grandmother of the bride, 498 Atlas Avenue, wore a beige lace dress; and had a corsage of pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Donsky spent their wedding trip in Kiamesha Lake, N. Y. The bride travelled in a beige wool, knitted suit; and had brown accessories. They will reside at 573 Old Orchard Grove.

SWADRON-GIBLON

The marriage of Miss Eunice Giblon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold N. Giblon, 69 Ranee Avenue, to Barry Bernard Swadron, son of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Swadron, 665 Roselawn Avenue, was solemnized on Saturday, December 24, at six o'clock, at Beth Sholom Synagogue, by Rabbi David Monson. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her long, princess gown of white satin peau de soie was fashioned with a scooped neckline, appliqued with seed-pearl-beads and Alencon lace; and full skirt terminating in a chapel train. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a crown which encircled her high coiffure; and she carried a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis. Mrs. Louis Litvack, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, wearing a lilac-coloured peau de soie gown, cut with fitted bodice; scooped neckline which was covered with beaded silk organza; and held at the waist by a cummerbund. The bridesmaids were: Mrs. Barney Giblon, sister-in-law of the bride; Misses Paulihe Mason and Rosalyn Giblon, cousins of the bride; and Mrs. Donald Fox, sister of the groom. Each wore a lilac-coloured peau de soie gown, made with an Empire bodice, and beading at the scooped neckline, and on the narrow straps. They had rhinestone tiaras; and carried cascade bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. The bride's sister, Miss Joy Giblon, was junior bridesmaid, in a pale mauve, silk organza gown with a gathered cummerbund; and had a matching head-band, with rhinestone clip. She carried a miniature cascade of yellow chrysanthemums. Donald Fox, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Clifford Swadron, Paul Gastman, cousins of the groom; Dr. Barney Giblon, brother of the bride; Louis Litvack, brother-in-law of the bride; Albert Kerzner, David Starkman, Michael Lewis, Sheldon Drebin, Ivan Fleischmann, and Ian Ceresney. A dinner followed at the Synagogue with four hundred guests present. Mrs. Giblon, mother of the bride, wore a mauve peau de soie gown, fashioned with a fitted bodice; scooped neckline; and full side pockets on the full skirt trimmed with self-material flowers, centred with strung pearls; also a rhinestone tiara; and had a mauve orchid wristlet. Mrs. Swadron, mother of the groom, wore a mauve peau de soie gown, with crushed cummerbund; and bodice of beaded, lilac-coloured peau de soie. She had a mauve rhinestone tiara; and an orchid-coloured wristlet. Mr. and Mrs. Barry Bernard Swadron spent their wedding trip in Bermuda, B.W.I. The bride departed in a grey dress, and matching tunic coat; and had a pink orchid corsage. They will reside at 2301 Victoria Park. Here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mandel, and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Mandel, of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Ian Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Fox, Maurice Fox, Miss Leona Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Manny Swadron, Clifford Swadron, Miss Judy Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Rosen, Leon Kramer, Jacob Summerstein; all of Buffalo, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arnoff, of Windsor, Ont.; and Mr. and Mrs. L. Bernstein, of St. Catharines, Ont.

Gives Busts Of Bernstein To N.Y. And Israeli Orchestras

Twin castings of a bust of Leonard Bernstein by the noted sculptor, Robert Berks, were presented by the America-Israel Cultural Foundation to the New York Philharmonic and the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra as a symbol of cultural exchange between the two countries. The presentation was made at the offices of the New York Philharmonic, 111 West 57th Street, New York.

The sculpture, which is unusual in that it was fashioned not at formal sittings but at rehearsals of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, is the gift of Mrs. Blanca Schwartz, wife of a Queens chemical manufacturer, A. A. Schwartz, who is president of the Schwartz Chemical Company. Samuel Rubin, president of the America-Israel Cultural Foundation, made the presentation to David M. Keiser, president of the New York Philharmonic, and Abe Cohen, manager of the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra which is now completing a tour of the United States, Canada, and Mexico under the auspices of the Foundation.

The America-Israel Cultural Foundation helps to support forty cultural organizations in Israel and conducts a two-way program of cultural exchange between that country and the United States. Leonard Bernstein is one of a number of American artists and musicians who have figured importantly in this cultural exchange program. Mr. Bernstein played with and conducted the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra in Israel on numerous occasions. Among these, he led a number of performances for the Israeli Armed Forces during the 1948 War of Independence. He also conducted the Orchestra during the dedication ceremonies which opened the Israel Philharmonic's new Fredric R. Mann Auditorium, in Tel Aviv. Mr. Bernstein conducted the Israel Philharmonic during its previous American tour in 1951. He is a trustee of the America-Israel Cultural Foundation.

Sculptor Robert Berks has won wide recognition for his heads of Albert Einstein, Ernest Hemingway, and others. His head of Abraham Lincoln was chosen last year by the United States government as the definitive portrait for the Lincoln Sesquicentennial. His head of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, first president of Israel, was chosen as the official portrait of Weizmann in a competition in which sculptors Jacob Epstein, Jo Davidson, and thirty other competed.

His bust of Leonard Bernstein was made during three afternoon rehearsals of the New York Philharmonic, preceding the Orchestra's last concert of the past season. It attempted to catch Leonard Bernstein's expression at the moment of the "Angels' Chorus" in Hindemith's "Mathis der Maler." This work is an interpretation of the painting "Der Isenheimer," by Matthais de Grunewald. Mr. Berks made his sculpture sitting in the tympani section of the Orchestra on three successive afternoons, and put the finishing touches to the bust during a rehearsal rest break.

The marriage of Miss Agnes Laufer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Otto Laufer, 36 Peveril Hill Road, North, to Gerald Marvin Seligman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Seligman, 76 Glen Rush Boulevard, was solemnized on December 25, 1960, at five o'clock, at Beth Sholom Synagogue. Rabbi David Monson officiated, assisted by Cantor Henry Wahrman. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of silk brocaded damask, which was fashioned with a fitted bodice; scooped neckline; and long sleeves; with bouffant skirt, and cathedral train. Her fingertip illusion veil was caught with sprays of lilies of the valley; and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis. Mrs. Frederick Mann, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, wearing a metallic, gold-coloured, brocade gown; with off-the-shoulder neckline; and bell-shaped skirt, with a panel at the back, which was lined in lime-coloured satin; and a matching stole. Her crown was of metallic gold-coloured threads; and she carried Talisman, and white and yellow roses. The bridesmaids were: Misses Sima Shore, and Zena Pearlstone; and Mrs. Jack Norman. They were attired in pale mauve satin sheaths; with flowing, long-sleeved coats of mauve organza; and had matching headbands. Their bouquets were of mauve and pink roses. The flower girls were: Janice Tkatch, cousin of the groom; and Katherine Surany. They were white organdy dresses, with mauve satin sashes; and carried baskets of pink and mauve-tinted roses. Sheldon Seligman, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Barry Sniderman, Bruce Kisluk, Lloyd Duckman, Steven Berda, Allan Green, Michael Farber, Barry Shoot, Gary Snider, Allan Budd, and Melvyn Seligman; cousins of the groom. Lawrence Mann, nephew of the bride, was junior usher. At a dinner at the Synagogue, three hundred and twenty guests were received. Mrs. Laufer, mother of the bride, wore a gown of hand-painted brocade, on a gold-coloured background; cut with V-neck; fitted bodice; and a long, bell-shaped skirt. Mrs. Seligman, mother of the groom, was gowned in three-shaded mauve lace, with fitted bodice; and long skirt. Both carried bouquets of mauve orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Seligman spent their honeymoon in New York; and in the Catskill Mountains. The bride travelled in a cherry-red worsted tweed suit; and a black and cherry-coloured velvet toque. They are residing at 6 Mile Post Place.

The Canadian Jewish Review regrets any annoyance caused to the Algiers Hotel, in Miami Beach, Florida, by advertisements of January 20 and 27, in which, through error, the room rate was published as $9 instead of $18. The Hotel was swamped with requests for reservations which caused it embarrassment and extra work. The Canadian Jewish Review does reach the people the Algiers Hotel wants, and can well understand its problem and dilemma. Excuse it, please.

SLOGAN HUNTING . . .

We sat down the other day with the guy who writes these ads. Think of a slogan, we said. "Entertainment Unlimited", "Entertainment for Every Event", "A Snider Orchestra will blow Your Blues Away".

All true, if we say it ourselves. But somehow it doesn't have the class we're looking for. "The Best in Music", he suggested. But someone else is using that one. "The Finest in Music". No, we got beaten to the punch with that, too.

Let's leave it at this: We can provide music for ANY event; happy, cheerful, sparkling entertainment for everyone.

Engage us for your next party — and think up your own slogan for us! Call us anytime.

STARK-PERSOFSKY

The marriage of Miss Harriet Persofsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Persofsky, 11 Glen Cedar Road, to Brian Calvin Stark, son of Mrs. M. B. Abrams, 2500 Bathurst Street, and Maxwell Stark, 178 Hampton Avenue, was solemnized on Saturday, January 28, at seven o'clock, at Beth Sholom Synagogue, with Rabbi David Monson, and Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg officiating, at a candlelight ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gardenia-white, peau de soie gown, with a fitted bodice and overskirt, detailed with appliques of Alencon lace and pearls. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was attached to a crown of lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white hybrid orchids and stephanotis, which was adorned with pearl beads, to match the gown. Mrs. Earl Rubinoff, 10 Wilmington Avenue, was matron of honor, and wore a deep-blue peau de soie gown, with overskirt; and matching headband. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and blue cornflowers. Allan Stark, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Paul and Arthur Persofsky, brothers of the bride; Jerry Abrams, of Ottawa, Ont.; Ashley Gorman, of Detroit, Mich.; Gerald Gold, Theodore Rachlin, Albert Schiff, and David Starkman. The aisle of the sanctuary was decorated with tree-candelabra of white chrysanthemums and blue cornflowers. Following the ceremony, a dinner was held in the banquet hall of the Synagogue, which was decorated with white and blue flowers. Mrs. Joseph Persofsky, mother of the bride, wore a blue peau de soie gown, with a full skirt; and trimmed with matching seed-pearl beads. Mrs. M. B. Abrams, mother of the groom, wore a light-blue peau de soie gown, with full skirt, and chiffon droping. They had wrist-corsages of mauve orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Brian Stark spent their wedding trip in Mexico City and Acapulco, Mexico. The bride departed in a purple wool suit with a fox collar to match; and a mauve flowered hat. They will reside at 525 Chaplin Crescent. The out-of-town guests were: David Goodman, of Miami Beach, Florida, grandfather of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. L. Shapiro, of Pembroke, Ont., uncle and aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. B. Segal, Harry Perts and daughter, Miss Judith Pertz; all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yome, of Calgary, Alta; Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper; and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller, of Simcoe, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. K. Shulman, and Susan, of Belleville, Ont.; all cousins of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Gorman, of Detroit, Mich., uncle and aunt of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. S. Pomish, Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Sherman, and family; Mr. and Mrs. P. Warhelt, Mr. and Mrs. A. Colman, Mrs. Rose Colman, all of Detroit, Mich.; and Mrs. Helen Cash, of Buffalo, N.Y.; all cousins of the groom; Mrs. Gerald Abrams, of Ottawa, Ont.; Mrs. Marjorie Coyle, of Colborne, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. B. Katz, of Hamilton, Ont.; and Mr. and Mrs. B. Little, of Trenton, Ont.

TURCHEN-GEBIRTIG

The marriage of Miss Mandella May Gebirtig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Gebirtig, 44 Granlea Road, to Richard Turchen, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Turchen, of Sioux City, Iowa, was solemnized on January 14, at seven o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, by Rabbi David Monson. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a beige lace dress with its own jacket; and a shoulder-length tulle veil to match, which was held by a pearl-trimmed pill-box hat. She carried a nosegay of miniature white orchids. Mrs. Gabriel Ash, of Westchester, N.Y., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a ribbon-striped mauve and orchid grosgrain dress; with a mauve orchid wrist bouquet. Robert Sabel, of Sioux City, cousin of the groom, was best man. Mrs. Sol Gebirtig, mother of the bride, wore a white and mauve organdy dress which had a bouffant skirt; with a mauve orchid corsage. Mrs. Turchen, mother of the groom, wore a beige lace sheath; and had a yellow orchid corsage. After a honeymoon in Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, the couple will reside in New York. Here for the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. Turchin, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Ash, of Westchester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Irwin, of New York; and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. How do I save?

When it comes to saving here's a trick worth knowing. Avoid writing cheques against your Savings Account. Impossible? Not at all! Just open a Personal Chequing Account at the "Royal" and use it for paying bills.

Then you can keep your Savings Account strictly for saving. The bank calls this the 2-Account Plan — a sure-fire way to save. It makes sense. It's business-like. And it's easy... Why don't you give it a try?

Israel And Its Critics On The Visit Of Toynbee To Montreal

BY RABBI MENDELL LEWITTES, OF YOUNG ISRAEL SYNAGOGUE, OF MONTREAL

There is a portion of the weekly Torah reading, read in the Synagogue recently, named after a Gentile, Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses. This non-Israelite was so impressed by the reports he heard about the miraculous events which attended the exodus of the Children of Israel from Egypt that he decided to visit them in the wilderness and publicly declare the greatness of the Deliverer of Israel.

"And Jethro said, 'Blessed is the Lord who hath delivered you from the land of Egypt. Now I know that the Lord is greater than all gods.'" Now this Jethro was a learned man, a student of all the ancient peoples and religions of his time. From the statement quoted above, our Sages inferred that Jethro knew and recognized all the gods worshipped in his age. This was no mean task, as the ancient gods were as numerous as the multitude of tribes which peopled the Middle East of the early Biblical period. After hearing what the Lord had wrought unto His people, Israel, Jethro came to one conclusion: No other nation's history could parallel that of Israel's, for in no other nation's history was there manifest the hand of a protecting Providence as in the case of Israel. Having come to this conclusion, Jethro was moved by the magnanimity of his heart to undertake a journey in order to acknowledge personally the uniqueness of Israel and the supremacy of its faith.

When Jethro visited Israel and observed its manner of government, he found it imperfect. He discovered what much later came to be known as Jewish "hutzpus", a Jewish disregard for civic organization. And Jethro did not hesitate to voice his criticism and point out the faulty system of government. But he did not merely find fault, he offered a plan to improve the situation. His criticism was constructive, and therefore it was accepted by the Jewish people. In fact, his recommendation became part of holy writ, and was inscribed for all time in Scripture. In gratitude, he was named "Jether", which means "additional", because through his good counsel there was added another chapter to our Torah.

This is the story of Jethro, which happened millenia ago. Now the Jewish community in Montreal has another story to tell, a story, which can be captioned "Toynbee". We were treated to the views of another prominent Gentile, a historian who can boast, as Jethro did, that he has studied the life and history of all peoples. And he has charged the people of Israel with the gravest of charges, that they have sunk to the uttermost depths of Nazi immorality. That we are tainted and corrupted with the same moral corruption that led the Nazi leaders and followers to commit the most horrible example of man's inhumanity to man.

And what good counsel does he give us? A counsel that amounts, as Ambassador Herzog so brilliantly pointed out, to suicide. To his advice the Ambassador gave the classical answer of Judaism, as spoken by the Psalmist: "We shall not die, but we shall live".

The Professor has asked a question to which he has given his own answer, based upon psychology. I am going to ask him a similar question, and supply the answer, also based upon psychology. He asked: "Why is the Jewish community so aroused? Why is the reaction so vigorous?" And he says that our conscience is bothering us. Now we know that this is not the true answer, but a rationalization of his own unsubstantiated charges.

The true answer is, we feel, as follows: We claim to be the people of morality par excellence, and when one attacks Israel as being immoral, he attacks the very core of Israel's heart and mind, the raison d'etre of Jewish existence and survival. "We live", continues the Psalmist, "to declare the works of the Lord", who is the essence of morality. Down through the vicissitudes of our history, there have been ringing in our ears the words of our forefathers first heard at Sinai: "And ye shall be to me a Kingdom of priests and a holy nation." And our history has borne this out. The history of the Jewish people, a history which the mendacious professor conveniently ignores, is the greatest example of morality, of adherence to divine principle, that the world has ever witnessed.

No other people as a whole has been as moral, as patient, as forgiving, as slow to anger, as Israel. No other people has suffered as much cruelty from its tormentors as we have, and nevertheless remained as unscarred spiritually and morally as Israel. As the Ambassador so ably pointed out, we have no rancor even against the Arabs whose leaders day after day fulminate against us and threaten to drive us into the sea. And to charge us with immorality is to deny everything we stand for. It is a nefarious attempt to tear from us the cloak of ethical justice which has been our badge of glory and to expose us to the derision of all our neighbours. No, it is not our guilty conscience which pricks us, but the deliberate lie which is aimed at our heart and soul.

Now let me pose my question, a very old question, indeed, asked long ago by the Psalmist: "Why are the Gentiles in an uproar, and why do they fabricate such vain accusations, against the Lord and against His anointed?" Why does an eminent professor, who professes to speak and write the truth, compromise his international reputation and spread abroad such indefensible charges? What moves Toynbee to become the tool of fanatic Arab leaders who openly and unashamedly have embraced the Nazi program?

To me the answer is as follows: Toynbee is a good Christian who is following the teachings of Christian theology. Briefly put, it is this: Christianity has come to replace Judaism as the bearer of the Lord's message to the world. The world is sorely in need of this message, which speaks of brotherhood and peace, of charity and justice. Toynbee has called upon the Church to carry on this task, a very worthy task, indeed, to be a light to the nations and guide them out of the darkness of strife and warfare.

But the Church demands an exclusive right to this task. It claims to be the only possessor of the truth, the only religious faith which can bring salvation to the world. It cannot tolerate another faith claiming to represent these eternal truths and hoping to spread the knowledge of the Lord over the face of the earth. And that is why Toynbee must declare: The Jews cannot speak in the name of morality, for they themselves are immoral. The Jews cannot preach justice, for they themselves are unjust. Israel cannot raise the banner of international fraternity, for they themselves reject peace and co-operation with their Arab neighbours.

This explains Toynbee's absurd and palbably false charges. It remains for us to remind him of but one of the Ten Commandments: "Thou shalt not bear false testimony against thy neighbour." With slander and innuendo we will not achieve the hope of mankind, so eloquently expressed by our prophets:

"And they shall beat their swords into plowshares,
And their spears into pruning-hooks;
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they learn war any more.
But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree;
And none shall make them afraid;
For the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken.
For let all the peoples walk each one in the name of its God,
But we will walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever."

WORLD ZIONIST HEAD

the last few years and be on guard against all kinds of dangerous developments," he said.

Dr. Goldmann warned of other dangers facing Jews in his address to more than 500 delegates who represent Zionist organizations in many parts of the world. Nearly a third were from the United States.

"Anti-Semitism has not disappeared," the Zionist leader said, "and the greater the distance of our generation to the Nazi period, the more the neo-Nazis and neo-Fascists may begin to manifest themselves."

There has been increasing disenchantment with the Zionist movement among young people in Israel and abroad. Most of them who speak of the subject feel that the Zionist mission was fulfilled when the state of Israel was established nearly thirteen years ago.

Premier David Ben-Gurion is counted among those holding this view. He has said often that the Zionist Organization was the scaffolding of the state and that the time has come to take the scaffolding down, says the New York Times.

Dr. Goldmann defended the continuing need for Zionism to encourage immigration to Israel and to raise funds and arrange for the settlement of newcomers in proper living conditions here.

"In the fight for our right to remain a distinct Jewish Group," he said, "there is a special aspect which applies only to us and which we have to include in our justified demands: namely, the right of Jews to leave their countries in order to emigrate to Israel."

Protests Against Call To Dissolve Zionist Movement

The National Executive Committee of Farband-Labor Zionist Order adopted a resolution calling upon the U.S. State Department to protest the "inhuman actions of the Moroccan Government in refusing to permit Moroccan Jews to rejoin their families in Israel." The resolution termed the action on the part of the Moroccan Government "an example of cruel and senseless persecution of the Jewish population of Morocco." It expressed the hope that the State Department would use its good offices to prevail upon the government of Morocco to change its policy and allow Moroccan Jews to be united with members of their families who are now living in Israel.

At the same meeting the National Executive Committee heard a detailed report on the recent Zionist Congress, by Louis Segal, general secretary of the Order; member of the World Zionist Executive; and leader of the Labor Zionist Movement in the United States. Mr. Segal asserted that despite the many problems which beset the Zionist Congress and the difficult atmosphere in which it was held, the Congress succeeded in focusing the eyes of the movement and of World Jewry on the fundamental purposes of Zionism today.

"These are the encouragement of greater immigration to Israel from the free countries; the intensification of fund-raising efforts in behalf of the State of Israel; and the enhancement of Jewish education and cultural activities as a means of forging greater unity among the Jewish people throughout the world and Israel. The fact that more than five hundred delegates from approximately forty countries discussed these problems in a frank and constructive manner and adopted important decisions towards the solution of these problems, is potent evidence of the strength of the Zionist Movement."

Mr. Segal took issue with Rabbi Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress, for his recent statement calling for the dissolution of the Zionist Movement.

"As Rabbi Prinz is well aware, the Zionist Movement today is the most potent unifying factor in the Jewish World. Without the existence of the Zionist Movement, not only would the State of Israel suffer financially, politically, and morally, but Jewish life as a whole would be thrown into chaos. Rabbi Prinz knows well how difficult it is to establish any sort of a unified representative body among American Jewry. It is significant that Rabbi Prinz did not offer any concrete suggestions as to how this can be accomplished through the dissolution of the Zionist Movement. As president of an organization which is often accused of duplicating the activities of others, it is particularly unseemly for Rabbi Prinz to question the continued necessity for organized Zionism."
